NECKLINES SQUARE UP WITH STYLE

Right Angles Capture Hollywood's Favour.

Necklines are on the square when it comes to being smart right now.

Ruby Keeler has a new black and white printed frock that has a cute square neck, outlined with pleated organdy, with crisp cap sleeves made of four layers of hand-hemmed organdy. Its belt has an enormous buckle, of shiny metal.

Ann Harding has a lovely blue lace dinner dress, with long sleeves that has a square neck, cut very wide at the sides to give her slender neck an even greater appearance of grace.

June Vaneek wore a very spring-like dress of green organdy, with deep square neck both front and back, and double-puffed sleeves.

Claudette Colbert has a black crepe dress with little guimpe of embroidered organdy, with the black crepe cut square, the white making a light, round neckline, with little turn-down collar.

A different kind of a square look to the neckline is illustrated by a new brown crepe that Patricia Ellis is wearing. It has a white crepe yoke with a high, turn-down collar, fastened at the back, which sits right down into the brown of the dress in a square, old-fashioned yoke line. The sleeves are pleats of the brown, outlined with the white and the buckle of the belt is a very ornamental metal one—looks like two daisies.

Lona Andre wears a bathing suit of scarlet with square neckline both front and back. The straps are white and from a distance you can't see how she keeps it on.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton

Do children prefer parents who make them mind? Or do they love better the ones who let them do as they please?

The country over, most mothers—and fathers too—are of the mistaken opinion that the way to win the love of their children is to give in. Every time they do exert authority and demand obedience there is an unhappy little devil whispering, "He will love you less. Of course you have to discipline him, but each time you do it he will hate you."

It is all a mistake. No parent need worry about authority killing a child's love, unless this parent is unreasonable, unjust, actually unkind, or overbearing.

The truth is that the very basis of love is founded upon respect. Children are unconsciously observant. Instinct tells them when a parent is weak, or weaker than himself.

Want Guidance

More truth is that children feel the need of being guided and managed up to a certain degree. They love freedom to do things their own way, but license, they know, is a different matter.

The boy who deliberately breaks things, runs away against orders, abuses his sister, or thinks up things to worry his parents knows they are weaklings if they permit

him to do it indefinitely. And he won't love them just because they are weak.

There are very few really "bad" children. A thousand things enter into the makings of a boy like that. He would never have gotten that way if he had been intelligently handled from the start.

When matters reach this stage, however, disciplining becomes a real problem.

Yet under it all he will know instinctively when he deserves a reckoning.

Consider His Age

Most children know when they deserve disciplining. Moreover, the child who is disciplined when he knows he deserves it is seldom resentful.

But in all training and all discipline the child's age must be considered. A child of 6 will do things his 12-year-old brother or sister would not do, because he has not learned yet to divide all right from all wrong. He is more impulsive, more experimental, less likely to think it out.

Children of all ages respect and love the parent who can control them. The wiser the parent is in that control, the better. It does not follow that the eternally punishing or scolding parent is loved. For to whip or scold is too often a sign of weakness.

Coddling, giving in, loading with too many gifts, allowing waywardness, are no real foundation for love. They only cause selfishness in the child, who soon learns to forget his parents altogether.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Keep the Youth in Your Eyes.

By Alicia Hart

Keep your eyes young! Eyes, more than any other feature, betray the increasing years. If you can meet Summer with an interested wide-open gaze, then life is still ahead of you.

The actual mechanics of the eye call for help in keeping them bright. You can get your face dirty and not know it. But just let a speck get into your eye and you'll have to do something about it. Keep a good eye lotion these windy days. You should rinse your eyes out the minute you get in off the street, just to make sure you're keeping them absolutely free from dirt. Also, a good rinse helps relax eyes that are tired from wind.

These are the days when eye packs are invaluable. Try putting hot packs on for 15 minutes while you lie down before dinner. Try a hot wash-cloth, if you haven't any eye packs and don't want to buy them.

One more good help for tired eyes. Nights, or when you nap, rub just a little carbollic vaseline, muscel oil, or some other oil with a little zip to it, over the lids and massage gently. And, if you go to sleep with hot cotton pads over your eyes, that does a lot to relax and refresh them.

These are little things to do. But it is of just such little things that perfection is made. And the better you treat your eyes, the younger they stay looking, just remember that.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is in love with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent. She met Barry through STEVE BACCAINELLI, her childhood sweetheart, who returns to New York after three years' absence. Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with Barry, owner of a diamond mine long believed worthless. Together they have made the mine pay and are now business partners. Steve owes a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru." LOTTIE CARL, fashion model, John, Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements.

CHAPTER XVIII

Mona whirled, powder puff in hand. "At Sherry's?" she asked. "You went to tea with Barry at Sherry's?"

"Yes."

"But I didn't know—I mean you didn't!"

Lottie nodded shamelessly. "And a very good ten it was too. Barry wanted to talk to me, silly!" She went on in a different tone. "We couldn't stand very well on the street corner! You see it happened this way. My name is in the telephone book. Barry told me it took him an hour to find my last name and then he had to call the shop. Now he remembered even the first is a mystery to me! He generally calls me 'Hey, you!' Haven't you noticed? Well, he asked me to tea, said he couldn't make it dinner because of another engagement."

"I met him at 5:30 and right away Barry wanted to know if he had been horned in between you and Steve. Said Steve would hand you over even if the day had been set for the wedding if he thought Barry loved you because that's the way Steve is. Anything Barry wants Steve hands over!"

"Barry has done a lot for Steve too," Mona said uneasily. "Yes, and he's dying to do a lot for you. Listen! I told him on my honour that you only cared for Steve in a sisterly way. I said it was the same with Steve. Pals in school days and all that."

Lottie's eyes grew softly reminiscent of that tea hour when Barry had blurted out his love for Mona. "Well," she concluded, "I guess I'd better leave some of this for him to tell you first hand. It's quite an awful, let me add! Isn't it time to go down stairs now? I'm starved!"

Arm in arm, the two girls went down the broad staircase. Barry met them below.

"Thought you had disappeared permanently!" he said. "Let's go! Breakfast is waiting."

He led the way past the drawing room, past his uncle's library, to the dining room. A fire crackled on the hearth, licking the birch logs with which Mason, now and then, replenished it. Mrs. Exton was absent, but Barry explained they would see her at dinner. Mason served the delicate viands cooked by Jenn, his wife.

There was orange juice, cereal with thick cream, an oyster omelette with delicate curls of bacon, muffins and coffee.

Steve ate as though he enjoyed the food and Mona observed how at home he seemed in Barry's environment. Barry frequently tossed tidbits to the dog, his left hand dangling to caress a velvet ear.

"Want to have a look at the grounds?" he asked as they rose. Unathletic save on the dance floor, Lottie vetoed the walk. "You

two run along," she urged with a sly wink at Steve. "I have something I haven't told Steve about."

"Go ahead," Steve said. "I've something I've been wanting to tell Lottie ever since I met her." But his smile was for Mona.

Barry found a beret and huge sweater for Mona and presently they set off. Half a dozen dogs greeted them excitedly as they appeared on the lawn. Mona and Barry stood for a moment, the crisp air filling their lungs.

"Great stuff!" cried Barry, breathing deeply.

"And yet," Mona pointed out, "you're leaving it."

"Oh, yes! My business, you see, isn't here."

They set out briskly on the road leading toward the stables.

"You must rough it at the mines," Mona said.

Barry shook his head. "No, we don't rough it. I shouldn't say that."

Mona spread her hands to indicate Twilands at one motion. "This is luxury! Surely—"

Barry nodded. "Luxury. And idleness and, more or less, dissension! Maybe I've told you my uncle and I don't get on very well. We can't seem to mend the situation. I've very nearly stopped trying. Twilands is, in a way, half mine, you see. It's my home. I couldn't pass up Twilands."

He paused uncertainly. "Of course I have my own income but it's tied up so my uncle can really supervise the spending of every dime. At the mines I am someone. The whole place belongs to us. We have a huge house—you should see those houses in the tropics! High, wide and handsome. Latticed to let the air in and not a pane of glass in the whole building. We dine on the verandah, watching the fireflies in the dark. We have books—not too many, because the insects destroy the bindings. They feast on book-binders' glue, it seems. We have huge beds like King What's-his-name died in, with netting draped over the sides. I shouldn't say we rough it. There's a golf club near enough for convenience. And we have our island. We go there occasionally for holidays."

They walked a few moments and then Barry continued, "You can buy a linen suit down there for 80 cents—"

"Help!" Mona exclaimed, laughing. "I see I was wrong! You don't rough it at all! Remember, I live on wicked, costly Third Avenue!"

The dogs came tumbling out to meet them. The valley, smoke-filled, stretched out invitingly. Lacy trees waved their tender branches. Mona and Barry strolled across the golf course toward a clump of maples.

"I want to show you my little camp," Barry said. "I had it built when I was in college. We dammed the stream and when there was skating I used to have parties there."

A half mile farther the camp, a small affair at the water's edge, came into view. There was a wide verandah piled with chairs tipped against the storms. The door was locked and above it, on a high sill, was a white chalk line. Barry raised on tiptoe, drew his hand along the line and found the key.

"Careful of the rug there," he called as he swung the door open. Too late! Mona had not seen the carpet rolled at her feet. She tripped and stumbled. Barry caught her.

"Great Scott, you aren't hurt?" He raised her in his arms, a fragile burden, and swung her into the room.

On her feet once more, breathless, Mona stood laughing. Barry regarded her seriously. "That's an old-fashioned custom, isn't it? I've heard it somewhere. Swinging one's bride over the sill!"

Mona felt frozen in her tracks. Strangely, Barry avoided her eyes and went to explore the living room of the camp. He knelt at the fireplace and nodded with approval when he saw that a fire had been laid. Without speaking Mona followed him slowly.

The room was cold and chilly. The rugs had been rolled and were standing about the walls, the chairs dusty and old but comfortable. There were camp beds, denim covered and pillowed. Tables. A wide buffet at one end and beyond a kitchen, well stocked with staples and canned goods.

According to Messrs. Swan, Culbertson and Fritz, the New York market was steady yesterday. Business done: 6,060,000 shares. The Wall Street Journal reports: Stocks and commodities advanced substantially owing to the break in the dollar, which declined to slightly under 85 cts. However, profit-taking checked further advance and caused stocks to lose part of the gains which during the day ranged to more than 6 points.

Water Restrictions.

Telegraph.]

Sir,—The 'old' restriction on the supply of water in this Colony has already had its effect from to-day, and the occurrence, as experience shows, falls in during the same period of the season of the year when water is more abundantly required and indispensably needed. Altho the reservoirs are said to be opened for six hours daily—from 8 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. respectively, there are already complaints that no water comes into the house for the whole of this morning. So we are already in the trouble, and if the weather doesn't change and bring us a down-pour of shower to rain the cats and dogs, we will soon have to see the fun of washing ourselves with our own perspiration. Of course, complaints, curses, blames, will not do us any good nor bring any relief. But why not make a little revolution and apply the restriction during the winter time instead of during these hot days? We have just to reverse the maxim "Look for our dry days" and not for our rainy days, in our case.

Yours etc.,
C.S.C.

KILLING THE GOOSE

The homely wisdom of a poet
is often nearer the truth than
the theories of philosophers and wiseacres. Aesop, in one of his
fables, tells of a householder
who had a goose that laid a
golden egg every day. Becoming dissatisfied with so slow an
income, however, he killed the
bird, "thinking to seize the whole
treasure at once." Economists
and philosophers to-day, spurred
by economic and social unrest,
are speculating as to the causes
of the slump and trying to find
remedies for the conditions it
has brought about. They are engaged in seeking the goose—
the goose which apparently
provided resources for the dizzy
prosperity of a few years ago.
Two prominent educationists
recently spoke on these problems,
expressing views which are
particularly interesting because
of the different ways in which
they approached the subject.
Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler declared the situation pointed "to
some fundamental failure of
that plan which seeks to adjust
demand with supply through the ordinary medium of prices." In this view, Dr. Butler was pursuing the argument launched by the technocrats. The needed adjustment "is itself a technical
problem," he said, "since on the
one hand all the elements of productive efficiency are present
and anxious to co-operate, while
on the other hand the human
need for the products of this cooperative efficiency is imperative and universal." But Dr. Elmer Brown sounded a deeper and
more significant note than the
"technical problem" theory when
he declared that the "social mas-
tery of those material gains
which the sciences have brought
us" must be found through "a
better development of the social sciences—economics, sociology,
politics and related subjects." The necessity, as Dr. Brown sees it, is to bring the social sciences
"up to such pitch of power that
they may give to the accomplishments of physical science a more effective direction to desirable
social ends." Dr. Brown's views
find support in a study of the relation of wage policies to the distribution of purchasing power.
made recently, which indicates
that existing economic difficulties might justly be attributed,
at least in part, to the working
of "an uncontrolled profit motive," functioning not only during the "prosperity" years but
even during the first half of 1932. This is the twentieth century version of Aesop's fable of
the goose that laid the golden
eggs. The curve of dividends,
the study showed, rose steadily
from 1926 until, in the first half
of 1930, they reached a peak of

97 per cent. higher than the 1926
level. The total volume of interest and dividend payments in
both 1930 and 1931 was higher
than in 1929, and in the first half
of 1932 was still 72 per cent.
while, wages bills, which furnish
the bulk of the purchasing power of the lowest income groups,
who provide 67.27 per cent. of
the market for goods and services—dropped constantly from
the middle of 1929 until in the
first half of 1932 they reached
a level 56 per cent. below that
of 1926. No wonder the demand for the products of industry declined while the purchasing power of more than two-thirds of
the consumers of those products
was being drained away by wage
cuts—although the higher income groups, who make up less than one third of the market for consumers' goods but invest
their surplus funds largely in
increasing productive equipment,
were getting interest and divid-
ends only about 25 per cent.
smaller than they had been in
the rosier years of prosperity.
Overcoming in modern industry
the tendency of Aesop's house-
holder to be dissatisfied with
moderate and reasonable returns
may be a problem no less formidable than that promulgated
by the technocrats. But recognition of the appropriateness of applying Aesop's homely illustration to the situation might set
men to work to bring about
prompt and effective measures
for increasing distribution and
consumption—a simpler and
more comprehensible process
than awaiting the outcome of
complicated, involved and lengthy attempts to create a civilisation that is "operated on a thermo-dynamically balanced
load."

Statuesque Inaccuracy

People who put up statues
should really be more careful.
In London, a correspondent of
The Times points to the equestrian figure outside the Houses
of Parliament, which shows
Richard Coeur-de-Lion apparently wearing his chain-mail next to his skin. Richard was in many respects an eccentric
monarch, but the writer of the letter in question is probably
justified in his obvious feeling
that he was not so eccentric as all that. For, although Richard is well known to have had the heart of a lion, no one has hitherto suggested that he had the hide of an elephant. But these inaccuracies are by no means confined to Britain. Doubtless
there are statues elsewhere
which manifest similar absurdities.
They certainly do in India.
For example, the statue of Sir
Thomas Munro on "The Island," Madras, represents him performing the remarkable feat of
balancing a naked sword on the top of a dancing pump.
The explanation of course, is
that art seeks after truthfulness;
and truthfulness and accuracy
are not by any means always
the same thing.

Seeing England in Germany

Reports that a film showing England's scenic beauty, ancient
buildings and modern industrial
developments is delighting German audiences and surprising
German commentators indicate
that many cultivated Germans
are just discovering England.
Even the Berlin reviewers seem to be among those agreeably surprised: London—with its huge dimensions, its gigantic
traffic, its imposing buildings—
appears as a strange world, although it lies only a few hours'
journey distant from us.
The film offers an abundance
of pictures of a country and its inhabitants who are closely related to us and whom we think
we know... Happy land! One
may note in other passages from German newspaper a similar
sense of the writers' having
happened upon a country hitherto somewhat removed from their experience. This eagerness with which the pictures of England have been welcomed by German audiences and critics is quite understandable. Despite
the restrictive influence of nationalist doctrines in many lands,
the times are marked by an increasing desire on the part of
people the world over to understand one another, regardless of

HOLLYWOOD COMES DOWN TO EARTH

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Hollywood is finished. Hollywood is in better shape than at
any other time in its history.
These two statements seem to contradict each other. In fact,
they do not. To understand the position of Hollywood to-day, you have to realise that there are two Hollywoods. The present so-called
slump in the film world in America
is merely a transition from the
one Hollywood to the other.
Let me explain. The film world
in America was boosted to un-
manageable dimensions on the crest of a boom. During that boom money ceased to have any
solid value. Speculation ran mad.
Everybody bought everything, regardless of cost. Among other things, cinemas were built regardless of the capacity of a population to fill their seats, or of
the ability of Hollywood to keep their screens filled with films of
first-rate quality.
Cinemas in panic demanded
more and more films. They shouted for double-feature programmes,
changed weekly or even bi-weekly.
Hollywood was goaded to produce
talking pictures in such quantity
that quality became a minor consideration.

FINANCIAL DOMINATION.

The making of films, which is
an art and a very difficult art, became an industry. It became big business. Hollywood became dominated by financiers, became mechanised. Its studios became factories turning out so much film
footage on factory schedule.
The cinemas themselves were mechanised. By reckless buying
they were collected into huge
chains and were run on the same lines as cheap multiple stores, but
with less intelligence. Every
local manager in a multiple store
chain is, as I understand it, his own buyer. He must deal in the goods made for the chain, but he
may vary his quantities to suit his customers.

The local manager of chain of
cinemas has not even this small
liberty. He must offer the goods
supplied to the chain, without any consideration for his customer.
He ceases to become a caterer to
the needs of his public. His cinema has all the individuality of
a slot machine.
There is no magic in the world
whereby drama can be reduced to a recipe, a formula, or a standard commodity. If there were, it would be as easy to tin films as to
tin sardines.

QUALITY, NOT QUANTITY.

These superfluous, mechanised
cinemas found their public disappearing and decided that film-
goers wanted more for their
money: hence the double-feature
programme, the quick change of
programme, the panic production
of pictures, and the general in-
feriority of the pictures made.
But it was quality and not quantity that the public wanted.
That is one of the two Holly-
woods: the Hollywood that is finished.
The present slump is not a
cyclone that has torn the film
world up by the roots. It is only
a very healthy wind that has
blown away a lot of dead wood.
In its recent madness, Hollywood hired everything and everybody to deliver pictures on time.

Stars and those who never could
be stars, directors and substitutes
for directors, were given fantastic
contracts, and apologies for authors were engaged to turn or churn out stories so that these
might be kept at work and the schedules might be observed. In this way the road to ruin was
covered in record time.
What is true of Hollywood may
be true of England, if England
does not profit by the fate of Hollywood; and, as a very close
observer of conditions throughout
the film world, I am sorry to say
that England, in my opinion, has not taken the Hollywood lesson to heart.

In the light of all these considerations, I say that the calamity
which has overtaken this Hollywood was inevitable. The incompetent had to go. Let them
go. A second Hollywood, a stronger and more secure Hollywood, remains and is on the eve
of a golden age. The film world
has not slumped. It has come down to earth.
Let us look at this other Hollywood: the Hollywood which regards the making of films as an art: the Hollywood which holds to
those ideals without which no
really fine films can ever be made.
I could write of the things that go
to the making of fine films: things
like courage and faith and the
taking of infinite pains, but I
would rather clarify this subject
with more practical argument.

In one of our great American
cinemas—the Roxy, in New York
—the receipts as between one film
and another, shown in precisely the
same conditions, have varied by as much as $11,000 in one week.
There is nothing to account for
this other than that the film-going public is film wise. As we say in the film world, the filmgoers of today go shopping for entertainment, and there is no known
method by which the filmgoers of
to-day can be deluded into flocking
to inferior films. They have developed a sixth sense in relation to the cinema.

WRITER THE CREATOR.

It is my absolute conviction that
the writer is the creator of film
drama, in the first instance, and Hollywood does not have sufficient
writers to create more than 60
outstanding talking pictures a
year. The maximum quality output of Hollywood is 60 talking pictures a year. The maximum quality output of London is perhaps 20 talking pictures a
year.

I do not say that the film world
should recognise this fact. I go farther. I say that those sections of the film world which do not
recognise this fact will die.
Years ago in Hollywood there
was a cry for "Bigger and Better Pictures." It became a joke. It is no joke now. It has taken on a new and serious significance. We must have pictures of surpassing
quality so that the film world will live. We shall not have the quantity of films we have to-day,
and the number of our cinemas
must be reduced by half, or even
more; but when that is done the
films we make will run for far
longer periods and will attract infinitely greater weekly patronage.
That is the Hollywood that will survive.

"Not a burglar, eh? Well, you can jush esplain to the

The Very Idea!

CONDIMENTINIA

By Eddie "Hot Dog" Kelly.

WHAT with the summer
upon us, and people
thinking of going for picnics
and what nots, we think
some hints on this all important subject would not be amiss.

Besides, it's the only thing we
can think of to-day.

The first thing you want on a picnic is salt. Salt is what you can take this with a grain of.
It is used as a flavouring for
animal, vegetable, mineral, and
the tails of the birds you can't
catch.

There are three
kinds of salt; one,
obtained at sea, is
called "old salt";
another is the salt
of the earth and
there is also a
tough old salt,
Epsom, by name.

Pepper is what the modern Hongkong housewife uses to keep
food hot indefinitely.

Combined with salt pepper makes a nice suit of salt fours. It is mined by punching holes in the top
of a tin with a rusty nail.

Pepper is very dangerous if
taken in large quantities, and
produces a condition known as
pep.

Pep is pepper with the last three letters omitted. If they are not omitted it is still pepper.
The most famous brand is Pepper Up.

Cinnamon is the difference between breakfast and getting out of bed on a cold morning. It comes in all the season's shades and is particularly becoming to brunettes
toast.

It is a fairly recent product.
The old Romans used potassium
cyanide. The young ones didn't care. Cinnamon is found all over the floor and around the corner of
the mouth.

Sand is the flavouring used mostly by picnickers. It is found in almost all bathing suits and is discovered by sitting down.

The vendor of this famous
edible used to be called the "sand
man" by the old-fashioned, but in Hongkong he is known as Johnny
Walker or "wassall".

The coarser varieties of sand
are found on our beaches, but a
finer grade, well worth the money,
may be seen at the Peninsula
Hotel Roof Garden any evening
with the Dawn.

When sand is by itself it is called beach. When it is mixed with ham and bread it is called sand-wich.

There is no substitute for sand,
the nearest thing being the ocean.

THIS NUDIST BUSINESS.

Once again the "open shirt"
calls, and the air resounds to the
nudist's merry whistle and the
clang of hobnail on macadam.
Eheu, fugaces, as our Tutor used
to say. He never would tell us
what it meant (the rascal), but we
think 'twas something to do with birds. "We like that 'twas." It strikes an open-air note.

Once again we are beset with
letters asking How and Why
to nude. Once again there are people tearing madly about the Colony looking for Mr. Lanepart.
Some people have all the luck.

Kit—Let us plead, once again,
for the absolute minimum. A spara suit of clothes, of course, a dinner jacket and stiff shirt, for
the evenings; pajamas and dressing gown—we never carry more.
The day's rations and a bottle or
two of the "wherewithal." A few
friendly books—Shakespeare; Wilcox; Bradshaw; the A.B.C. A musical instrument or so. And,
for hilly country, a small scooter
with auxiliary engine.

When we said "musical instrument" just now we think we should have specified a saxophone.
"Wind on the heath, brother"—
you know. That's the stuff.

TREASURE HUNT FAILSCREW'S ORDEAL AFTER YEAR'S ADVENTURE

A treasure hunt which began a year ago, when nine men left Brixham in the 35-ton cruiser yacht Vigilant to search the Spanish Main and the Cocos Island for gold, has been abandoned, according to a letter from Lieut. Commander F. C. Finnis, R.N., the boatswain.

He writes: "The poor old Vigilant is not seaworthy at present: the worms have eaten away the bottom of the boat and she is leaking badly."

"It is a great disappointment, as we have always looked forward to entering Brixham Harbour and tying up to our old billet. However, it would be too foolhardy to risk it."

The treasure-seeking expedition was abandoned after leaving Punta Arenas (Chile) for Balboa with only four of the original crew aboard. The Vigilant encountered adverse weather and developed a leak when 22 days out. The steamer Susan V. Luckenbach replenished the lockers with food and tanks with water sufficient for seven days. The crew were on the verge of starvation.

A United States survey ship towed the Vigilant to Frailes Islands. She was badly buffeted in the Gulf of Panama, and it took five days to accomplish the passage from Frailes to Balboa.

Commander J. Plumpton, R.N.R., of Culmpton, Devonshire, the skipper; Mr. Stratford Jolly, of Bourne End, Bucks, the promoter of the expedition; Lieut. Commander Finnis, of Walmer; and Mr. Frank Cooper, of Yeovil, navigated the Vigilant to Balboa.

£24,000 A YEAR
SINGERGIGLI'S FORTUNE—
HOW HE SAVED IT

Beniamino Gigli, the famous Italian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, New York, and Covent Garden, spent his 43rd birthday in London preparing for an Albert Hall concert.

He is surely the luckiest singer in the world.

Born in an Italian village, the son of the village shoemaker, he had his early experience of singing in the village church. Later he became assistant in a chemist's shop in Rome, in order to be able to study music at the St. Cecilia School.

Next he won a big singing competition, and was about to make the "golden journey" to America when the Great War claimed him as a sergeant in the Alpini for four years.

In 1920, however, he began his association with the Metropolitan Opera in New York. There, as leading tenor in the Opera House, which paid higher salaries than any other opera in the world, he was paid the princely fee of £24,000 a year for 40 performances—that is £600 a night.

REFUSED TO BE "CUT."

This lasted for 12 years—years of golden harvests for a singer idolised by the American public.

At the end of that time in the autumn of last year, it was proposed that the salaries of singers at the Metropolitan should be cut. Gigli, however, decided that he had come to the end of the golden road. He therefore transferred the whole of his fortune from America to investments in Italy, bought a magnificent villa near the village where he was born, and settled down to enjoy himself.

YO-YO CRAZE.

UNLICENSED HAWKER
CAUTIONED

A charge of hawking yo-yos without a licence was preferred against a Chinese youth before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

His Worship: "What is the Chinese name for yo-yo?"

Interpreter: "Defendant calls them wooden boxes. I have never played with it, myself."

The defendant was allowed to go with a caution.

FAMOUS AIRMAN HERE

MAJOR DOOLITTLE TO GIVE DEMONSTRATION FLIGHTS

Major J. H. Doolittle the famous U. S. Army speed pilot arrived in Hongkong yesterday by the President Lincoln, and will leave again to-night for Canton where he will put the first of the batch of Curtiss Hawk pursuit planes which have been bought by the Canton Government through her tests. He will also give a demonstration of this plane's capabilities to Canton Government officials.

COURT PROTEST.

INQUEST STATEMENT
BY ACCUSED

A strong objection to the Crown Prosecutor reading the accused's statement at the inquest, was made by Mr. W. A. Mackinlay before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court yesterday, when he appeared for the defence of Mark William Hallums, an officer of a Chinese Maritime Customs' launch, against whom a verdict of manslaughter was recorded by a Coroner's jury in Kowloon. The inquest concerned the death of Ng Koo, a girl aged three years, who died during an armed attack on a cargo boat in Junk Bay on April 1.

Mr. Mackinlay said he objected on the ground that no caution was administered.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, assistant Attorney General, for the Crown, asked what authority Mr. Mackinlay had in support of his contention.

Mr. Mackinlay—I cannot say offhand.

The Crown Prosecutor—I propose to press strongly for the admission of that evidence.

The Magistrate observed that the statement should not be read at that juncture, but later, when all parties would be fully armed with authorities.

Mr. Fraser said he could find no instance where a witness had been cautioned before giving evidence at a Coroner's enquiry.

Mr. F. G. Nigel held a watching brief on behalf of the Chinese Maritime Customs.

Magistrate's Qualms.

At the outset, Mr. Wynne-Jones said he wished to pass a few remarks before hearing the case. When he first heard that he was to hear the case he experienced certain qualms as to whether it came within his jurisdiction. As a result of the enquiry, said his Worship, the Coroner saw fit to commit the accused on a verdict of manslaughter being brought in by the jury. Under the Criminal Procedure Ordinance, the Attorney General had power to appoint a Magistrate, and he had done so. Mr. Butters, in refusing to hear the case and referring it to him (Mr. Wynne-Jones) had been quite right. His Worship pointed out it might be that some evidence at the enquiry might be excluded in this trial.

Mr. Fraser said the present proceedings were instituted after the finding of a Coroner's jury in Kowloon. At 6 a.m. on April 1, cargo boat T2061H left Hongkong with sugar on board for Sai Kung, and passed through Lymun Pass about 7 o'clock. An hour later, a Chinese Maritime Customs launch was seen following the craft and on overtaking it near Junk Bay, signalled it to stop. It was interpreted on board the junk as a signal to proceed south. The junk altered its course southward, and when turning north, the launch, he understood, blew a blast. The junk did not stop and the launch fired a shot. The first shot struck the stern of the junk, and it was actually that shot that killed the girl.

Two Shots Fired.

The junk continued in a northerly direction and a second shot was fired by the launch, which appeared to have kept up, being practically abreast when the second shot struck the port quarter. The fuse of the shell lodged in the other side of the craft. The first shot that killed the girl, also injured her mother, who had since recovered and would be giving evidence. The junk returned to read at that stage.

Mr. Fraser pressed strongly for its admission.

Dr. J. B. Mackie, medical officer in charge of Kowloon Mortuary, said he performed the post mortem on the girl, whose face was badly battered, the eyes, nose and right side of the forehead having been blown away. The cause of death was a fracture of the skull and laceration of the brain. The wound was consistent with injury caused by a shell—either a whole shell or a fragment.

Lieutenant-Commander F. T. Boswell, of the Naval Armaments Depot, gave technical evidence. He said the shell was a Q. F. 11 three pounder pointed steel shell. Most of the damage was done by the shell which burst at the rear of the junk. From the damage

ANGLO-PERSIAN OIL

THE NEW CONCESSION

Teheran, May 1.

The new Anglo-Persian concession permits the company to work approximately half their original ground in South-West Persia and stipulates that the Company give up the portions which cannot be worked by 1938, when the total shall not exceed a hundred thousand square miles.

The company will not have the exclusive right to instal pipe lines. As well as four shillings gold per ton the company will pay Persia one fifth of the net profits. In the event of sterling falling the company will compensate Persia for loss on exchange.

The concession will run for 60 years after which Persia will claim all the company's effects.—Reuter.

SOVIET AMBASSADOR.

LEAVES SHANGHAI ON WAY TO NANKING

Shanghai, May 1.

The Soviet Ambassador to China, M. Bogomoloff is enroute for Nanking this morning. It is expected he will present his credentials to Mr. Li Sen, Chairman of the National Government to-morrow.

M. Bogomoloff will be accompanied by his wife and they are expected to stay in the Capital for some time to confer with Chinese leaders regarding a suitable site for a Soviet Embassy there and on other matters.—Reuter.

ARGENTINE TREATY.

MR. WALTER RUNCIMAN
SIGNS FOR BRITAIN

London, May 1.

Owing to a bad chill, Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, was unable to attend the Foreign Office to-day.

Consequently, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, alone signed the trade agreement between Britain and the Argentine, on behalf of Britain.—Reuter.

done, he thought not more that two shells were fired.

Master's Story.

Ng Ling-wai, owner and master of the junk, was next called.

His Worship—It is rather unfortunate this man cannot go to sea.

Mr. Fraser—That is why it is important there should be no further Hongkong, being followed by the Customs launch as far as Lymun Pass. The junk anchored at Yaumati, and the master reported the matter to the Police.

The master of the Customs launch and the man who fired the shot was the accused, said Mr. Fraser, who then elected to read the accused's statement made at the enquiry.

Mr. Mackinlay objected strongly, and the Magistrate decided that the statement should not be read in the proceedings, your Worship.

Witness told the Court that he formerly traded in Siam and came to Hongkong in March this year. On April 1, he set sail for Salung, from Salt Fish Lane, West Point. He carried a cargo of sugar. He kept two guns and 50 lbs. of gunpowder in the bow of the junk but the guns were not ready for use and they had never been fired. There were no other firearms or explosives on board. He set sail towards Junk Bay, and on first seeing the launch, witness was uncertain as to its honk. It was greyish in colour and was like the Government launch. A flag was flying.

Witness saw a hand signalling him to sail out. He was sailing north at the time. The launch drew parallel and was on the outer side towards the sea. The launch lowered a sampan, and as witness thought it was not a Government vessel and there might be a piracy, he ordered his steersman to turn back to port. The launch at that time was about 100 yards away. Immediately after he had given the order, the first shot was fired, and on his signalling, a second shot was also fired at the junk. The launch was following closely behind.

The hearing was adjourned to this afternoon.

NORTHWOLVES STALK
CAMERA-MAN

The adventures of six young British scientists who are snow and icebound at Fort Rae, on North Arm of the Great Slave Lake, Canada, in latitude 63, are described in a dispatch received from Mr. J. M. Stagg, the leader of the expedition.

The expedition represents the British contribution to the second Polar Year in which leading nations are taking part.

Among the difficulties these scientists have had to face have been:

A fire which broke out on the roof of their dwelling quarters;

The peril of wolves;

Rats which ate the gelatine off a number of photographic plates on which were pictures of the aurora;

Temperatures of minus 40 degrees (72 degrees of frost), which stopped many of the scientific instruments.

CLOCKS ON STRIKE.

Mr. Stagg records that with the fall in temperature all the clocks went on strike. Every clock had to be taken to pieces and all the oil removed before they would keep time again.

For information about the stratosphere, balloons, to which are attached meteorographs, are sent up, but the problem is to find the balloons afterwards. The priest has demonstrated to the Indians from his pulpit how to take the instrument off the balloons if they find them, and hand some rewards have been offered for their recovery, but so far only two have been found.

One feat of the expedition has been to link their headquarters with a sub-station 20 miles away by telephone, to do which telephone poles cut from trees had to be sunk into the ice of the lake at intervals of 120 yards.

The scientists take turns to keep a lone vigil at the sub-station for a week at a time.

STALKED BY WOLF.

Mr. W. A. Grinstead had a narrow escape when he was so busy manipulating the camera that he did not see a wolf prowling near him. An Indian shouted the alarm.

The expedition's news service is not too reliable. Mr. Stagg says:

"So far we have only been able to obtain wireless news from American stations, and from these we have had to listen to such alarming reports as 2,000,000 starving men marching on London or the outbreak of war between Britain and Persia over oil."

POLICE RAID
COCKFIGHT

DASH FROM BUSHES

Five police officers and an inspector of the R.S.P.C.A. surprised a party of men who were witnessing a cockfight on Whitbarrow Scar, recently. The names of several of the men were taken.

The officers had hidden in the bushes fringing the cockpit, which is centuries old. The first main had been in progress only a few minutes when the policemen dashed from their hiding places and there was a stampede.

There were about 30 spectators. Some had come from as far away as Ayr, in Scotland, and had travelled in motor-cars during the night. Birds and tackle were left in the ring and were seized by the police.

Two birds continued to fight, and one was killed by its opponent. The man is believed to have been a championship contest between the Northern English Counties and South-West Scotland.

A wild evening leaves most persons tamed.

Y.M.C.A. TAKE REVENGE BEAT COMBINED NAVY IN KEEN WATER POLO MATCH

CIVILIAN'S BIG IMPROVEMENT

The Y.M.C.A. polo team were worthy of their revenge which they took at the expense of the Combined Navy side yesterday, winning by three goals to one after a game of sustained interest and excitement.

The Navy again turned out their strongest team, but the Young Men were forced to make last minute alterations, neither Jenner nor Henry being able to take the water. E. W. Railton and Stoker were introduced and played prominent parts in the success of the civilians.

With the Y. M. defending the deep end in the first half, the Navy enjoyed the greater share of the exchanges, but thanks to some brilliant goal-keeping by H. Angus, and the good spoiling work of Kerr and Stoker, the nautical score was kept down to a single goal at the interval.

It proved insufficient, the Y. M. taking complete control of the game after the change over, and through Campbell and Schreuder (2) won a great game.

SOUND DEFFENCE.

Sutton was outstanding for the Navy, whereas all the "Y" team played well. Among who showed up prominently were Angus in goal, Kerr and Stoker, Railton and Schreuder. Kerr and Stoker displayed pleasing understanding in defence but left the impression they would be better to pass forward more frequently. Railton was a tower of strength both in defence and attack, and that he is fast regaining his old form is very evident.

Campbell and Schreuder were hard working forwards and more than held their own against a powerful Navy defence.

The teams were: Y.M.C.A.—H. Angus; W. Kerr and W. Stoker; E. Railton; W. Campbell, A. Donn and W. Schreuder.

Combined Navy.—C. Mitchell; C. Older and G. Groves; W. Hutton; C. Lee, J. Laker, and J. McCrea.

This made the fifth meeting of the teams with the Y.M.C.A. holding the balance of victories by three to two, one of the games being played at Tai-po.

Arrangement are in hand for a friendly game at the Y.M.C.A. bath against South China, and it is hoped to fix up a good match for the "Y" second string.

LAWN TENNIS.

B. I. Bickford Wins Title in
C.B.A. Tournament.

DRAW FOR THE DOUBLES.

The singles championship of the Central British Association has been won by B. I. Bickford, who beat R. Blyth in the final by 6-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The draw for the doubles championship of the Association has resulted as follows:
R. A. Carroll and M. Weill v. R. Peart and R. Blyth; F. Angus and D. Fogg v. S. MacNider and E. Owen; D. Buchanan and T. S. D. Whitley; G. Fowler and A. Smith v. G. Gurovitch and F. Anslow; N. Whitley and J. J. King v. B. I. Bickford and D. Smith v. J. J. Ferguson and R. Wood v. E.

The competition is for the J. J. Hirst Memorial Cup.

All-In Wrestling Condemned

CORONER'S STRONG COMMENTS

All-in wrestling is one of the latest society crimes. It is a recent importation from America. Exhibitions of this so-called sport have attracted large British crowds both in London and the Provinces.

Now it has come under the ban of a British jury. At an inquest at Sheffield on "Strangler Johnson," who died after being beaten in an all-in wrestling contest, the jury declared that the business was not a clean English sport and that it ought to be prohibited.

The Coroner thought that all-in wrestling was an unlawful sport and that when a combatant died as a result of such a contest his opponent was liable to a charge of manslaughter.

POLICE OPINION.

A Police-Inspector said that "all-in" wrestling contests were of such a nature that no genuine sportsmen would tolerate them or go to see them.

The men behaved more like animals than human beings. He added that in the case of contestants of experience it was a pure hoax on the public, as the result was known before the men went into the ring.

A police officer who saw the contest said that Johnson bit his opponent's hair, and pulled it out with his teeth. He also spat in his eyes while he was on the floor and got hold of both his ears and twisted them.

"Earl Romany," the opponent in question, said he had had about twelve bouts with Johnson, and was on perfectly friendly terms with him.

BESTIAL ENTERTAINMENT.

At a recent all-in wrestling fixture in London, well-known Society women crowded the ring-side seats. Pale young men wearing carnations were there accompanied by famous actresses. A young Peersess was there.

They yelled and clapped at the most revolting and bestial entertainment that could have ever happened. Nose twisting and kicks in the belly particularly appealed to the sadistic audience.

All-in wrestling means that the contestants can do almost anything except hit each other in the face with clenched fists or gouge each other's eyes out. The fighters go on until they drop and are counted out.

Gorilla-like men, nearly naked and of superb physique, bit, scratched, hit, kicked and gouged while a sensational mad audience urged them on.

STOP AT NOTHING.

Blood delighted the thronged Stadium. People yelled with delight when a man bit deep into his opponent's ear. "Break his leg," they shouted. "Snap his fingers off," they screamed. When the wrestlers came to a deadlock the crowd shouted out with impatient irony—"Kiss him, dearest!"

They stopped at nothing. Twice the referee ended fights just in time to save arms from being broken. "Leave them alone!" roared the crowd. There were four bouts. In each one of them one or other of the fighters was thrown bodily out of the ring into the audience.

On one occasion both men were flung over the ropes. One man fell into the lap of a woman—a woman well known in Mayfair circles. Her hat was knocked off and her belongings scattered. She effected a remarkable recovery, pulled herself together and smilingly lit a cigarette.

SUMMER HOCKEY TOURNEY

COMPETITION FOR CIVILIAN TEAMS

WARNING TO THE ORGANISERS

By "Bully-Off"

Several civilian teams are said to be taking part in a summer hockey competition to be held this year, among them being the Radio Sports Club, Kowloon Indian Tennis Club, the United Hockey Club, Incognitos, University and the Police.

Strict secrecy so far as information to the Press is concerned is being maintained by the sponsors of the tournament, but I learn that a cup is probably being offered by Mr. F. C. Mow Fung of the Outdoor Sports Company.

SAINTS LIKELY ABSENTEES. It appears that teams will meet each other twice and all games will be played on the Radio Sports Club ground at Sookumpoo.

All civilian teams have been invited to participate in the competition, but I was reliably informed this morning that it is unlikely that St. Andrew's will join.

Summer hockey was carried on in the Colony up to two years ago. When the game was introduced the Club fielded a team called the Wanderers, under the captaincy of Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell, and matches were played with the Jats, H.K.S.R.A. and Naval sides. When Mr. Mitchell resigned Mr. A. A. Dand took over the leadership of the Club team and when the summer game fell out of favour two years ago Mr. L. A. R. Duncan was captain.

A WARNING.

In view of the possibility of the teams competing for a cup, it would not, perhaps, be out of place to mention that if the competitors commit this breach of the English Hockey Association rules, they will not be eligible to play with local teams affiliated to the Home Association.

It was because of this very rule, and the fact that the majority of competitors were naval teams owing allegiance to the English Hockey Association rules which caused the Manak trophy to be withdrawn this last winter.

The summer league is an excellent idea and there is no reason why enthusiastic clubs should not enjoy the game throughout the year, but the organisers would be well advised to look before they leap in the matter of offering a prize.

It would be folly to ruin civilian clubs' chances of playing with the navy sides merely for the sake of a trophy for a close season competition.

SOLVING FOOTBALL'S HIGH FINANCE

Scrap Half of the Clubs in Third Division

Scrap half the clubs in the Northern and Southern Sections of the Third Division, and form a new and stronger competition with the remaining 22 teams! That is the proposition put forward to a London evening newspaper recently by Mr. Jack Treadwell, manager of Crystal Palace, as a solution to the acute financial problem which is threatening League football.

"It is common knowledge that a large proportion of Third Division clubs are heavily in debt," said Mr. Treadwell, "and how some of them are to carry on I really do not know. The cause of the trouble, in my opinion, is that these clubs cannot provide the class of football that their supporters expect—and the reason for this is that they cannot afford to buy the right players."

NOT ENOUGH PLAYERS. "At present there are not enough players to go round—not enough to supply the needs of the 88 clubs which now constitute the league."

The trouble, from the viewpoint of Third Division clubs, is that they now have to compete with wealthy First Division clubs for the services of junior players. Inflated transfer fees have forced the weaker organizations to do their own scouting in the preserves that used to be searched almost exclusively by the smaller League clubs.

Formerly, junior players used to be found by Third Division clubs, developed in their class of football, and later transferred to the bigger clubs at useful fees. Now we are being left out in the cold.

"My theory is that the only way to solve the problem would be to lessen the number of League clubs. If, say, a new Third Division were formed consisting of one third of the present Northern Section clubs and two thirds of the Southern Section teams, the competition would be far stronger in every way."

American Ryder Cup Team Is Very Strong

Will Be Best That Ever Invaded England in Quest of Golf Laurels

An exceptionally early and warm Spring suddenly came upon the country has set the golfers all agog. What about the coming American invasion? That is a topic being discussed on all hands.

It is generally accepted that the American team to compete for the Ryder Cup and to play in the open championships at St. Andrews will be the strongest that has ever left the shores of the United States.

LONG-HITTERS.

The American Selection Committee have chosen the men who happen to be in form at the moment; also they have pinned their faith to the skill of the long-hitters—men like Dutra, Wood and Shute.

Walter Hagen may find himself the shortest driver. He is a wily strategist. As captain, he will doubtless prove to be a tower of strength to his side.

Olin Dutra has been called the golfer without a weakness. He is a very fine putter. Weighs 17 stone. But then, these big men often do have a beautiful touch on the green. He has been credited with some wonderful scoring feats; also he won the American Professional Golfers' Association Championship which is decided by match play.

Craig Wood is another wonderful score player. He won a California championship with a score of 10 under 1's for 72 holes! Denmore Shute was runner-up to Olin Dutra in the American Professional Championship. His father came from Westward Ho! and went to America 25 years ago. It is not an uncommon name in that part of England.

Shute is one of the best American youngsters.

Paul Runya must be a very fine player if only from the fact that he defeated Sarazen in the same championship which Olin Dutra won. The tenth man will doubtless be a player with equally impressive credentials, so that the English golfers will have a difficult task, not only to beat them in the actual match for the cup, but also to prevent one of them from heading the list in the Open at St. Andrews in July.

WALTER HAGEN.

Everyone will be delighted to see Walter Hagen occupying his position of Captain once more. It will be interesting to see if he has retained his form. There were rumours that he had lost his putting—surely the greatest loss that a golfer can sustain—but he has evidently rediscovered the secret.

Hagen is the greatest personality that the game has yet produced, and he invariably gives of his best in this country—especially on British sea links when the wind blows shrewdly. Diegel is an extremely interesting personality, both as regards style and temperament. He struck out an entirely new line of putting, which, although it cannot be any stretch of imagination be called graceful, was exceedingly effective.

Henry Cotton will not be eligible to play for Great Britain, owing to his appointment in Belgium. On the other hand, Percy Alliss, is back from Germany, and several of the younger players showed excellent form towards the close of last season.

A. Perry, of Leatherhead, has already given instance that he has lost none of the form which brought him into the final of what is looked upon as the unofficial match-play championship for the "News of the World" trophy, held at Moor Park last September.

Playing at the meeting of the Guildford Alliance at Fleet, he won with the wonderful score of 67, which was one stroke better than the par of the course—great going under anything but ideal conditions, with the course in its winter state, and playing distinctly long!

RECENT MOTOR FATALITY.

CAUSES ATTRIBUTED FOR THE ACCIDENT

The hearing of evidence in connexion with the Coroner's inquiry being held by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's Court, into the circumstances surrounding the death of a young Chinese woman school teacher, Yeung Wai-lee, who was killed in a motor accident in Victoria Road on March 11, is nearing a close, and a verdict will most probably be delivered on Thursday afternoon.

The driver of the car, No. 3710, Kwok Hung-ki, is alleged to have deliberately driven the car over the embankment, and an allegation to this effect was made by the dead girl.

Continuing his evidence yesterday, Kwok described the accident. After leaving Aberdeen about 12.20 p.m. on March 11 he said he took the lower road at the request of Yeung Wai-lee. Near the scene of the accident he saw a man cross the road about two or three feet in front of the car round a bend. He applied the footbrake, but the car continued on its course. He then swerved to the left to avoid the man and before he realized what had happened the car went over the bank.

When he recovered he found himself in hospital. He was doing about 17 to 20 miles per hour prior to the accident, according to the speedometer. The road near the scene of the accident seemed to have been recently tarred with a coating of gravel on it. His speed was not more than 20 miles an hour, for it would have been dangerous to have gone at a higher speed as the road was full of bends.

In reply to Mr. Hin-shing Lo, who is appearing for him, witness said that he had been a salesman at Goeke and Company for the past six months, and during that period had occasionally driven a similar car in size and make to that involved in the accident. This particular car was sold to Mr. Li Yee about December last, and witness had learnt that it had been undergoing repairs to its engine and brakes at Ah Yau and Co.

Causes of Accident.

In reply to Mr. Wadeson, who is holding a brief for the owner, Mr. Li Yee, witness stated that he attributed the accident to the man crossing the road and the defective brakes. When he found that the brakes would not act properly, he turned the car back to the road, but it was too late. During this trip he had occasion to use the brakes at a previous bend, but on that occasion they had been effective because he had slowed down.

Questioned by the Coroner, witness said that neither the deceased girl nor her sister, Yeung Wai-yuk, had remarked about the speed of the car after leaving Aberdeen. He could not have stopped the car with the foot brake alone. He did not use the hand brake because the two girls were seated with him in front.

Mr. Hugo Ammann, partner in the firm of Messrs. Goeke & Co., next testified to the fact that when a car was bought from their firm the owner could have it repaired free of charge for six months at their service stations in Kowloon and Hongkong. Ah Yau & Co. were their agents in Hongkong for repairing cars.

Yee Wai-man, the manager of Ah Yau & Co., next gave evidence. He was questioned on the repairs done to car No. 3710 prior to the accident. He said that he remembered repairs being effected to the cushions, horn, rear lights, and once the lubricating oil being replaced with new oil, but never repairs done to the engine or the brakes.

The inquiry was then adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

THE FAMOUS "PRESSURELESS TOUCH" HAS MADE IT THE FAVORITE OF MILLIONS

IT'S ABSOLUTELY true that many people would never think of owning any pen but a Parker Duofold. It writes so easily, holds so much ink, and looks so well in their pockets and on their desks that they just won't change!

Try a Parker yourself, if you've never used one. Hold the pen lightly between your thumb and forefinger. Let the point barely touch the paper. You're writing words without pressure, without strain or effort! That's Parker's famous "pressureless touch," the exclusive feature that makes writing easier than ever before!

Ask the agent to explain the Parker's many other superiorities: Leak-proof, non-breakable barrel. Concealed button filler. Gold point, tested eleven times. And the handsomest pen you can buy, with a choice of many exquisite colors! For sale at all good stores.

Parker QUINK—A quick-drying ink that makes all pens write better. Prevents clogging. Brilliant and vivid colors which do not fade. Also washable blue for school and home.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery are Hollywood's newest combination of screen lovers. They appear together for the first time in "Faithless," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Miss Bankhead was borrowed from Paramount to play the feminine lead in this drama of the penniless rich, based on a story by Mildred Gram. It is her first engagement away from the studio which brought her from the London stage.

To add lustre to the occasion, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer selected Robert Montgomery for the jaunty hero of the story. Montgomery recently appeared opposite Marlon Davies in "Blondie of the Follies." He has also played leading man to Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford, and stood forth in his studio's opinion as the personality best suited as a "playmate" for the exotic Miss Bankhead.

This combination brings together two stars who suggest in the public mind the sense of smartness with the story of "Faithless" requires. It is a romantic tale of two young members of the "idle rich" who become step-children of the depression, and find themselves suddenly struggling in the whirlpool of present-day economic adversity.

In "The Front Page," he can be identified in the role of a newspaper truck-driver, a colourful "hussy" from the circulation department who makes the rounds of apartment houses and other questionable places in search of "Hildy Johnson," missing star-reporter, played by Pat O'Brien.

The Queen's Solist Russell Thorndike, who plays the sinister Doctor Munro in "Puppets of Fate," sang as a boy in the choir of the Chapel Royal, Windsor, and was boy soloist to the late Queen Victoria. He last sang at Windsor on the occasion of the Queen's funeral.

"She was a most delightful lady," says Mr. Thorndike, "and I remember on one occasion when I had sung the solo, she called me to her and asked me who out of all the celebrities present I would most like to meet. I replied 'Sir Henry Irving,' whom I had noticed among the congregation, and who was then my hero. The Queen then introduced me to him and my cup of happiness was full."

Mr. Thorndike can be seen in "Puppets of Fate" at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday.

"Mischief." Remarkable strides forward were made by British pictures during 1931. Just at the end of the year "Mischief," a British and Dominion production, set the seal upon all the farcical-comedies of the year. The story is one of the familiar Ben Travers brand, who will be principally remembered for "Rookery Nook" and "Plunder." The new picture, which will be shown at the King's Theatre again on Wednesday, is a typical Ralph Lynn subject and affords that great comedian abundant opportunity to display his genius. Keen judges who have seen "Mischief," regard it as being the funniest.

ply. "Do you think it would be fun to have supper down here?" he asked. "I'll get Jimmy to hunt up some steaks and we can bring Jean to fix something to go with it. I'll cook the steaks on the grill myself. That's something I miss at the mine!"

"I'd love it!" Mona told him, tremulously.

He had said the word "bride" and then, without warning, he had apparently forgotten her. Her had deliberately dropped the subject.

Barry closed the kitchen door, kicked at the wood basket, tested the lights, and said finally, "Well, shall we go back? We seem to be more or less deserting our guests, don't we?"

Looking at him, Mona realized that he had not been conscious of the pronoun. They went out on the verandah and Barry locked the door, replacing the key.

"You're shivering," he said abruptly. "We'd better walk rapidly."

British comedy yet made. It is a riot of laughter from the opening to the final fade-out. This laughter, too, in a most comprehensive type in that it covers everything from the inward grin to the hearty guffaw. Ralph Lynn gives a brilliant comedy performance, and is admirably supported by Winifred Shotter, Jeanne Stuart and James Carew.

Tala Birell, the screen's newest luminary, made her screen debut in a motion picture made by a German company and recorded in the German language, but filmed "on location" in England. Miss Birell is now appearing on the screen at the Central Theatre in the principal role of "Nagana." Universal's thrilling wild-animal picture told against the background of African jungles and detailing the dramatic fight of science against the dreaded jungle diseases.

Both Looking Better Every Day

New health is reflected in happy smiles, in brighter eyes, in better colour. Is there anything so wonderfully antiseptic as these things?

When health has been below par the surest way to recovery is to improve the quality and increase the quantity of the blood. The remedy which, for the past fifty years, has been noted as particularly efficacious in this direction is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In a recently series of tests conducted by a medical practitioner on a group of twelve persons, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills proved beyond all doubt that they increase the haemoglobin content of the blood and also the blood count. This definitely confirms the claims of this renowned blood and nerve tonic.

Acting in this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be relied upon to produce the happiest results in anaemia (blood impoverishment) and ailments resulting therefrom, such as nerve troubles, insomnia, chronic headaches, digestive troubles, physical weakness, depression, premature age, back pains, rheumatism, sciatica, women's ailments. They are also of great help after debilitating fevers or other weakening ailments.

You can rely on Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, backed by the reports of the medical profession.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney

Do you make the mistake of doubling a slam contract just because you feel assured of setting the contract one trick? If so, you are making a grave mistake. Safely to double a slam contract you must be positive of having at least two different ways of setting the contract.

Naturally, when your opponents arrive at a slam contract there are but few missing high cards, and so, when you have only one chance of setting the contract, your double may act as a boom-erang and instead of accomplishing its purpose, it may be the very means of helping the declarer to locate these missing high cards and may aid him in making his contract.

While in Rochester, N. Y., recently, arranging for the Rochester district tournament of the American Bridge League, Mr. Earl S. Cobey of that city referred the following hand to me.

The Bidding

Under the one over one system, the normal bidding would be South one spade, West pass. North, with his great strength, definitely knows that a game is certain and a slam probable.

The question is whether to force in diamonds or in no trump, personally I prefer the bid of two

♠ Q-6	♠ 7-5-4
♥ Q-J-6	♥ 2
♦ A-K-Q-10	♦ J-6
♣ A-9-5-2	♣ 4-3
♠ J-9-2	♠ 10
♥ K-9	♥ 8-7-4
♦ 8-3	♦ 10

♠ 6-3	♠ 10

no trump rather than one of three diamonds. The diamonds may be bid later on.

After the two no trump bid, South would bid three hearts. North would bid four diamonds, which bid definitely marks him with a strong four-card suit.

While South has two five-card major suits, he has no more strength than originally advertised in his initial bid, so his proper response would be four hearts. This tells North that the South hand contains two five-card suits.

South's three high-card tricks necessary for an original bid are practically marked. North should not bid five hearts, inviting a slam, but should bid the slam himself with a bid of six hearts. East and South would pass.

West is confronted with a problem—it looks as though he has a club trick, and certainly a heart trick. Most players with West's hand would double. Now let us see how the double would work to the advantage of the declarer.

West would open his king of clubs, hoping to establish a club trick immediately so that he could cash it when he got in with the king of hearts. This trick would be won by the declarer with the ace in dummy.

He would lead the ace and king of diamonds from dummy, on which he would discard his losing club. The queen of spades and then a small spade would be led from dummy, declarer win-

BOXER INDEMNITY

QUESTIONS ON BRITAIN'S REMITTANCE

London, May 1.
Information regarding Britain's share of the Boxer Indemnity was given in the House of Commons today following questions asked by Mr. Wardlaw Milne and answered by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who took up the Foreign Office questions in the absence of Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, who is indisposed.

Mr. Wardlaw Milne asked whether any memorial, comparable with that secured by the United States in the shape of the Peking University, had been arranged to mark the sacrifice of the British taxpayer in remitting his share of the Boxer Indemnity, to amount to approximately five times that of the United States.

Been Misinformed.

Mr. Baldwin said that Mr. Wardlaw Milne had been misinformed in his comparison of the sums involved. The United States had remitted approximately 35 million pounds in gold dollars out of a total of 53 million pounds—approximately 65% per cent, while the respective figures in the case of Britain were 11 millions, 16.5 millions and 68 per cent. The remitted British funds had been invested in rehabilitating and building railways and other productive enterprises in China, thus creating an endowment to be subsequently devoted to educational purposes, mentioned by Mr. Buxton of the Advisory Committee.

Under the agreement with the Chinese Government and the act of 1931, the allocation of funds was within the discretion of the Board of Trustees. Although this might not result in a memorial he mentioned that the British Government considered it the most practicable arrangement in the interests of both countries.

Mr. Somerville asked if there was a large grant to the Hongkong University from this fund.

Mr. Baldwin requested notice—

Reuter.

ning the second trick with the king.

The opening leader has shown up with the king-queen of clubs, and his double definitely marks him with the king of hearts. The drop of the nine of spades gives the declarer the encouragement that the spade suit may break, so instead of ruffing a spade, he leads a small heart.

West plays low, the trick is won with dummy's queen. A small club is trumped by the declarer, and a small heart led, which West wins with the king.

Now if West returns the nine of hearts, declarer will overtake dummy's queen with the ace, lead the ten of hearts, and then win the last three tricks with his three good spades.

However, West can make the play more interesting by leading the nine of diamonds, which declarer will win with dummy's queen, discarding a spade.

The declarer has played the hand marking West with the jack of spades, therefore West must have one diamond left. The ten of diamonds is led from dummy and trumped by the declarer with the ten of hearts. The ace of spades is led and a club discarded from dummy.

When the ten of spades is led, West is forced to trump with the eight of hearts, dummy overtrumps the last trick with the ace of hearts.

By taking advantage of West's double, the declarer has made his contract of six odd.

STOLEN MOTOR

TWO CHINESE SENTENCED AT KOWLOON

Before Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistrate's yesterday afternoon, a Chinese, Wong Tso, was found guilty on a charge of receiving one three h.p. Century electric motor, knowing the same to have been stolen or unlawfully obtained. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $150 or six weeks' imprisonment.

Another man, Choy Wing, pleaded guilty to stealing the electric motor and was sentenced to three months' hard labour. Inspector H. Langley prosecuted, while Mr. C. Y. Kwan appeared on behalf of the second defendant, Wong Tso.

In outlining the case, Inspector Langley said that Shum Sze, complainant, master of an iron foundry in Hungshom, reported on March 22 that some person had stolen a three h.p. Century electric motor valued at $150 which was the property of the China Light and Power Co. On March 26, first defendant, Choy Wing, was arrested and admitted having stolen the motor and taken it to second defendant's shop. Search was made at the shop and the motor was found in an outhouse.

Motor Hired.

First witness, Shum Sze, said in evidence that the motor had been hired from the China Light and Power Co. It was last seen on the night of March 21. A brass number plate, 281137, had been screwed to the motor.

Mr. Kwan: There was nothing on the motor to show that it was your property?

Witness: No.
Sergeant M. J. Flattery described the search which took place at second defendant's shop. At first defendant said he had no motor, but later admitted the fact and sent a small boy to an outhouse where the motor was found covered with boxes, paper and sticks. The number plate had been taken off, but defendant produced this from the cock-loft, together with a receipt for the sale of the motor by first defendant.

Mr. Kwan: Second defendant admitted that he had the motor, without any pressure on your part?—Yes.

Wong Tso, second defendant, in the witness-box said he had known first defendant for seven years and had taken part in many business transactions with him. Witness owned an electrician's shop at 434, Shanghai Street. When he bought the Century electric motor he had left it in the front shop for several days, but, owing to repairs taking place, the motor had been taken to the outhouse where the brass plate had been taken off and the motor painted without witness's knowledge. He had paid $80 for the motor.

Mr. Kwan: Did you know that the motor was stolen property?—No.

The Magistrate said he could not consider defendant's explanations were reasonable. The motor had been found on his premises, where it may or may not have been deliberately hidden. The motor had been newly painted and the Magistrate thought defendant's explanation was not at all reasonable.

Mr. Butters: I am not satisfied with the evidence that he paid $80 for the motor. I cannot accept defendant's story.

Mr. Butters then sentenced first and second defendant as stated above.

CLAIM STRUCK OUT.

PLAINTIFFS FAIL TO APPEAR IN SUPREME COURT

A claim for $1,000 damages for alleged wrongful detention was struck out at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon when the plaintiffs failed to appear.

The parties were Lam Kwan and Lo Loi, both of 89, Tong Mi Road, ground floor, and the defendants were Hongkong Used Cars, Ltd., of 366, Portland Street, Kowloon.

The statement of claim was to the effect that plaintiffs were in the employ of the defendant company on January 13 and on that day Mr. F. V. Whitta, managing director of Hongkong Used Cars, Ltd., procured the arrest of plaintiffs on a charge of having stolen five gallons of petrol. Plaintiffs were detained from January 13 to January 16 when, on the application of their solicitor, they were released on bail, pending the hearing and determination of the charge. Before the magistrate on January 23, defendants had tendered on evidence against plaintiffs, and the magistrate dismissed the charge.

THIS MONTH.

Changchun, May 2.
The Manchukuo Department of Finance has drafted regulations governing a virtual embargo on the export of gold, which are expected to be enforced some time this month. Under the new regulations, a licence will have to be obtained before gold may be exported.—Reuter.

EARL LYTON'S HEIR KILLED

AIR CRASH AT HENDON

POPULAR M.P. & SPORTSMAN

London, May 1.
Viscount Knebworth, M.P., the elder son and heir of the Earl of Lytton, was killed to-night in an aeroplane accident at Hendon Aerodrome.

He would have celebrated his thirtieth birthday next week. Viscount Knebworth was piloting a Royal Air Force machine, in his capacity as Pilot Officer of the County of London (Bombing) Squadron, when the accident occurred. The cause of the crash is not yet known.

HIGHLY POPULAR.

The tragedy removes a highly popular figure both in Parliamentary and sporting circles. He was member for the Hitchin Division of Hertfordshire, securing a majority of over 17,000 in the last election, after unsuccessfully contesting Shoreham in 1929.

He was a well-known amateur boxer, but his favourite sport was skiing. In business life, he was Vice-Chairman of the Army and Navy Co-operative Society.—Reuter.

THE STORY OF THE CRASH

PLANE BURSTS INTO FLAMES

(Special to "Telegraph")

London, May 2.
Viscount Knebworth was killed while practising for the auxiliary Air Force display which is to be given at Hendon Aerodrome on May 7.

The machine he was piloting, accompanied by Leading Aircraftman Harrison, was apparently landing when it crashed. The impact with the ground was followed by a burst of flame, which quickly involved the whole machine. Viscount Knebworth was incinerated before the Fire Brigade was able to answer the alarm.

Firemen were eventually able to drag out both occupants from the wreckage, but the Viscount was already dead and Harrison died in hospital.—Reuter.

FAIR TO SHOWERY

The Royal Observatory reports that a weak anticyclone is indicated over N. China; Depressions are situated over Tongking and Korea. Local forecast:—south or variable winds, moderate; fair to showery.

GUEST AT WORLD CONFERENCE

STRONG PRESSURE FOR TARIFF TRUCE

New York, May 2.
According to special correspondents at Washington, President Roosevelt may attend the World Economic Conference.

It is even possible that he will address the Conference, though it is understood that if he decides to travel to London, he will appear in the role of a guest, not as a delegate.

President Roosevelt has asked

Mr. James Cox, the Ohio newspaper proprietor, who was Democratic nominee for the Presidency in 1920, to join the United States delegation.

Mr. Norman Davis has been instructed to press for an immediate tariff truce, even if it includes Franco-British reservations permitting a surtax if the dollar depreciates to a damaging extent.—Reuter.

U.S. GOLD EMBARGO TIGHTENED

NEW PROHIBITION ORDER

Washington, May 2.
The United States Treasury has prohibited gold exports to meet maturing United States obligations held abroad or to pay interest on the coupons thereon.—Reuter.

WASHINGTON TALKS

ARGENTINE SENDS DELEGATE

Washington, May 1.
Mr. Thomas Lebreton, special economic representative from the Argentine, arrived to-day and was received by President Roosevelt.

It is understood that one of the topics to be discussed will be the control of the Argentine wheat production.—Reuter.

ART MUSEUM ROBBED

VALUABLE PAINTINGS STOLEN

New York, May 2.
An international alarm has been broadcast by the New York police following a daring theft during the week-end from the Brooklyn Art Museum.

A clever gang entered the Museum and decamped with ten valuable paintings by Van Dyck, Lawrence, Cranach, Rubens, Romney, Fra Angelo and others.—Reuter.

BUS FRANCHISE ISSUE

DEADLOCK REPORTED IN SALE NEGOTIATIONS

The possibility of the Government being asked to intervene as arbitrators in a deadlock between the China Bus Company and other concerns in Hongkong was foreshadowed to-day by Mr. Ngan Shing-kwan, Managing Director of the China Bus Company, in an interview with the Telegraph.

The parties have failed to come to terms for the purchase of vehicles belonging to the Hongkong Hotel and other bus companies which the China Bus Company is required by the terms of the monopoly recently secured from the Government to take over.

According to Mr. Ngan Shing-kwan, the companies have made the following quotations for their buses:

Hongkong Hotel Company, $22,000 for 36 buses operating on three routes; Hongkong Tramway Company $5,500 for eight vehicles operating on two routes; Aberdeen Kailong Bus Company $53,000 for 11 buses on the West Point—Aberdeen run.

June 11 is the date by which the China Bus Company must take over the operation of the Island routes, and in view of the present difficulties, the Company is likely to appeal to the Government.

The new-found friendship between Herr Hitler and President Hindenburg has made many things possible in Germany in recent months which would have been impossible under other circumstances. Our photo shows Herr Hitler greeting the aged German leader.

ANOTHER TORNADO DISASTER

TWENTY-FIVE KILLED IN SOUTHERN U.S.

New York, May 1.
At least twenty-five are reported to have been killed by a tornado which struck the States of Louisiana and Arkansas to-day.—Reuter.

Improper Use of Racecourse

SHANGHAI OFFICIALS DRASTIC ACTION

Shanghai, May 2.
The Municipal Authorities have decided to close the racecourse at 9.30 p.m. throughout the summer owing to the alleged numerous improper uses made of it last year.

The announcement has been received with considerable disappointment by many who used the racecourse for moonlight picnics and other amusements, but the officials state that the majority must suffer for the offences of the minority.—Reuter.

HECTIC DAY IN NEW YORK

SWEEPING SHARE GAINS —AND LOSSES

LARGE TURNOVER

New York, May 1.
The Stock Exchange saw a day of hectic trading, the consequence of a sharp drop in the dollar, which fell to a par value of about 85 cents.

The turnover in the course of the day was around six and a half million shares, the second largest of the year. The morning saw a wide assortment of stocks and staples leap to new high levels for the year and then suffer an equally severe reaction in many cases, owing largely to subsequent profit-taking.

Most of the gains were wiped out. Some of the stocks fell to below their opening quotations. The large turnover in the last few days is believed to indicate

HITLER'S WORK PLAN

MANUAL LABOUR FOR ALL YOUNG MEN

PLACATING THE FARMERS

Berlin, May 1.
After passing through streets lined with thousands of cheering people, in the company of President Hindenburg, Herr Hitler to-night delivered his long-awaited address on his programme for Germany's industrial recovery.

Hitler's address, which was delivered before a huge gathering at the Tempelhof Aerodrome, was broadcast throughout the country. The Nazi Chancellor outlined only the first year's programme of the Government's Four Year Plan.

COMPULSORY LABOUR.

He said he hoped to reduce unemployment by public and private works and the establishment of a compulsory labour service.

Every young German, he said, would have to serve for a period at manual labour.

"We shall begin by giving treaties the importance that they deserve, especially as far as agriculture is affected thereby. Our commercial policy will be such as to protect our production without harming the interests of our farmers."—Reuter.

PRESENTS CREDENTIALS IN NANKING

that some members of the public and rushing to invest in commodities and equities in view of the possibility of inflation, which would probably reduce the value of the dollar by half.—Reuter.

SILVER AND DOLLAR RISE AGAIN

Silver continues to rise in London and New York and the local dollar reacted this morning. The official demand rate being up 1/4d. Speculation is still the primary cause of the boom, but after the official fixing in London, with rises of 5/8ths spot and 11/16ths forward, the market ruled uncertain.

In New York, silver rose from 36 cents to 36 1/2, and the market was easy. The local market is easy and there is an inclination to believe that the top has been reached.

C.E.R. SITUATION GROWS GRAVE

SOVIET PLANES ACTIVE ON THE BORDER

INTEND TO RETAIN ROLLING-STOCK

HARBIN, MAY 2.

IT IS NOW OFFICIALLY ADMITTED THAT A GRAVE SITUATION HAS ARISEN BETWEEN MANCHUKUO AND SOVIET RUSSIA AS THE RESULT OF THE CHINESE EASTERN RAILWAY FRICTION.

It is announced that the Soviet Government have no intention of returning the rolling-stock which has been removed from the C.E.R. to Soviet territory.

All Russian-Customs officials at Manchuli are reported to be withdrawing into Russia and Soviet aeroplanes are active on the Manchurian frontier.—Reuter.

Tokyo, May 2.

The Soviet Government have lodged a second protest with Japan in regard to the C.E.R. dispute.

The Note alleges that Manchukuo has violated the Mukden Agreement of 1924 which provides for the joint operation of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

Manchukuo denies that the Agreement is binding upon Manchukuo and suggests a new Treaty.—Reuter.

LOCOMOTIVE FIRED ON.

The Soviet makes allegation of gross interference by Japanese frontier troops declaring that empty freight cars have been seized at Pogranichnaya and that an attempt was made to detain two Ussuri Railway locomotives on the ground that they were "out of order." Another Ussuri Railway locomotive, it is alleged, was fired on by Japanese frontier troops at Pogranichnaya.—Tass.

TRANSIT BLOCKED.

Dalson, May 1.
Considerable tension is reported over Manchukuo's decision to block transit to Suifenho, following M. Kouznetsov's third reply in which he maintains that the Soviets own the C.E.R. Manchukuo declares the Soviet answer makes it impossible to reach an amicable settlement.

Feeling has also been aroused by a report that two Soviet aeroplanes trespassed over Manchukuo territory at Pingyangchen on April 23.—Reuter Special.

PERSIA OIL PACT APPROVED

FURTHER DETAILS PUBLISHED

Teheran, May 1.
The Persian Council of Ministers have approved the grant of a new concession to the Anglo-Persian Oil Company.

Further details of the agreement which was signed in the presence of the Persian Ministers for Foreign Affairs and Finance and Justice and Sir John Cadman show that the Company agrees to engage Persians as far as possible, and also to pay £10,000 sterling annually for the education of students travelling to England to study engineering.

The Persian Government have the right to cancel the agreement if the Company wishes to liquidate or fails to carry out the terms of the agreement.

Such a cancellation will be subject to a two-year's notice.—Reuter.

STRANGE INCIDENT

BRITON SENT FOR TRIAL

THE WEDDERBURN CASE

Shanghai, May 2.
Leonard Wedderburn, a British subject, who was charged on April 24 with breaking and entering the house of Mr. W. R. Davis, has been committed for trial.

The case has aroused much interest in Shanghai, it being alleged that Wedderburn knocked on Davis' door about 5.30 a.m. on Saturday April 22. When it was opened by a coolie, accused attacked him, striking him on the head. It was then alleged that he proceeded to Mr. Davis' bedroom where he produced a loaded revolver and presented a paper which he demanded Davis should sign.

It is alleged that he threatened to shoot out the brains of everyone in the house if Davis refused. Davis was forced to accede to the demand but was later able to get the revolver from the accused, and after Wedderburn's departure, he summoned the police.—Reuter.

BOY BEATEN IN STREET

CHINESE COMMENDED FOR INTERFERING

Ho Sing was commended by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistrate's court this morning, for reporting an assault on a small boy, who was being beaten by a carpenter, in Queen's Road, West.

The defendant was fined $10 or ten days' imprisonment.

Inspector Hourihan said that Ho Sing saw defendant beating the boy in the street, and interfered. He asked a Chinese police constable to arrest defendant. Defendant beat the boy with a rattan cane and a wooden stick, causing marks on his back.

Mr. Schofield:—I don't know whether the boy wishes to stay on as an apprentice, but if he does not he may not be able to find another job.

Inspector Hourihan said that if the boy received any more beatings he could report at the West Point Police Station.

NECKLINES SQUARE UP WITH STYLE

Right Angles Capture Hollywood's Favour.

Necklines are on the square when it comes to being smart right now.

Ruby Keeler has a new black and white printed frock that has a cute square neck, outlined with pleated organdy, with crisp cap sleeves made of four layers of hand-hemmed organdy. Its belt has an enormous buckle, of shiny metal.

Ann Harding has a lovely blue lace dinner dress, with long sleeves that has a square neck, cut very wide at the sides to give her slender neck an even greater appearance of grace.

June Vlasak wore a very spring-like dress of green organdy, with deep square neck both front and back, and double-puffed sleeves.

Claudette Colbert has a black crepe dress with little guimpe of embroidered organdy, with the black crepe cut square, the white making a tight, round neckline, with little turn-down collar.

A different kind of a square look to the neckline is illustrated by a new brown crepe that Patricia Ellis is wearing. It has a white crepe yoke with a high, turn-down collar, fastened at the back, which sits right down into the brown of the dress in a square, old-fashioned yoke line. The sleeves are pleats of the brown, outlined with the white and the buckle of the belt is a very ornamental metal one—looks like two daisies.

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton

Do children prefer parents who make them mind? Or do they love better the ones who let them do as they please?

The country over, most mothers—and fathers too—are of the mistaken opinion that the way to win the love of their children is to give in. Every time they do exert authority and demand obedience there is an unhappy little devil whispering, "He will love you less. Of course you have to discipline him, but each time you do it he will hate you."

It is all a mistake. No parent need worry about authority killing a child's love, unless this parent is unreasonable, unjust, actually unkind, or overbearing.

The truth is that the very basis of love is founded upon respect. Children are unconsciously observant. Instinct tells them when a parent is weak, or weaker than himself.

Want Guidance

More truth is that children feel the need of being guided and managed up to a certain degree. They love freedom to do things their own way, but license, they know, is a different matter.

The boy who deliberately breaks things, runs away against orders, abuses his sister, or thinks up things to worry his parents knows they are weaklings if they permit

him to do it indefinitely. And he won't love them just because they are weak.

There are very few really "bad" children. A thousand things enter into the makings of a boy like that. He would never have gotten that way if he had been intelligently handled from the start.

When matters reach this stage, however, disciplining becomes a real problem.

Yet under it all he will know instinctively when he deserves a reckoning.

Consider His Age

Most children know when they deserve disciplining. Moreover, the child who is disciplined when he knows he deserves it is seldom resentful.

But in all training and all discipline the child's age must be considered. A child of 6 will do things his 12-year-old brother or sister would not do, because he has not learned yet to divide all right from all wrong. He is more impulsive, more experimental, less likely to think it out.

Children of all ages respect and love the parent who can control them. The wiser the parent is in that control, the better. It does not follow that the eternally punishing or scolding parent is loved. For to whip or scold is too often a sign of weakness.

Coddling, giving in, loading with too many gifts, allowing waywardness, are no real foundation for love. They only cause selfishness in the child, who soon learns to forget his parents altogether.

GLORIFYING YOURSELF.

Keep the Youth in Your Eyes.

By Alicia Hart

Keep your eyes young! Eyes, more than any other feature, betray the increasing years. If you can meet Summer with an interested wide-open gaze, then life is still ahead of you.

The actual mechanics of the eye call for help in keeping them bright. You can get your face dirty and not know it. But just let a speck get into your eye and you'll have to do something about it. Keep a good eye lotion these windy days. You should rinse your eyes out the minute you get in off the street, just to make sure you're keeping them absolutely free from dirt. Also, a good rinse helps relax eyes that are taut from wind.

These are the days when eye packs are invaluable. Try putting hot packs on for 15 minutes while you lie down before dinner. Try a hot wash-cloth, if you haven't any eye packs and don't want to buy them.

One more good help for tired eyes. Nights, or when you nap, rub just a little carbolic vaseline, muscle oil, or some other oil with a little zip to it, over the lids and massage gently. And, if you go to sleep with hot cotton pads over your eyes, that does a lot to relax and refresh them.

These are little things to do. But it is of just such little things that perfection is made. And the better you treat your eyes, the younger they stay looking, just remember that.

LOVE or MONEY?

BY H. W. CORLEY

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, is in love with BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent. She met Barry through STEVE BACARELLI, her childhood sweetheart, who returns to New York after three years' absence. Steve has been in South America where, largely by chance, he has become associated with Barry, owner of a diamond mine long believed worthless. Together they have made the mine pay and are now business partners. Steve owns a huge diamond called "The Empress of Peru." LOTTIE CARLI, fashion model, joins Mona, Barry and Steve on several dinner and dancing engagements.

CHAPTER XVIII

Mona whirled, powder puff in hand. "At Sherry's?" she asked. "You want to tea with Barry at Sherry's?"

"Yes."

"But I didn't know—I mean you didn't!"

Lottie nodded shamelessly. "And a very good tea it was too. Barry wanted to talk to me, silly!" She went on in a different tone. "We couldn't stand very well on the street corner! You see it happened this way. My name is in the telephone book. Barry told me it took him an hour to find my last name and then he had to call the shop. How he remembered even the first is a mystery to me! He generally call me 'Hey, you!' Haven't you noticed? Well, he asked me to tea, said he couldn't make it dinner because of another engagement."

"I met him at 5:30 and right away Barry wanted to know if he had been hornin' in between you and Steve. Said Steve would hand you over even if the day had been set for the wedding if he thought Barry loved you because that's the way Steve is. Anything Barry wants Steve hands over!"

"Barry has done a lot for Steve too," Mona said uneasily.

"Yes, and he's dying to do a lot for you. Listen! I told him on my honour that you only cared for Steve in a sisterly way. I said it was the same with Steve. Pals in school days and all that."

Lottie's eyes grew softly reminiscent of that tea hour when Barry had blurted out his love for Mona. "Well," she concluded, "I guess I'd better leave some of this for him to tell you first hand. It's quite an awful, let me add! Isn't it time to go down stairs now? I'm starved!"

"Thought you had disappeared permanently!" he said. "Let's go! Breakfast is waiting."

He led the way past the drawing room, past his uncle's library, to the dining room. A fire crackled on the hearth, licking the birch logs with which Mason, now and then, replenished it. Mrs. Faxon was absent, but Barry explained they would see her at dinner. Mason served the delicate viands cooked by Jean, his wife.

There was orange juice, cereal with thick cream, an oyster omelette with delicate curls of bacon, muffins and coffee.

Steve ate as though he enjoyed the food and Mona observed how at home he seemed in Barry's environment. Barry frequently tossed tidbits to the dog, his left hand dangling to caress a velvet ear.

"Want to have a look at the grounds?" he asked as they rose. Unathletic save on the dance floor, Lottie vetoed the walk. "You

two run along," she urged with a sly wink at Steve. "I have something I haven't told Steve about."

"Go ahead," Steve said. "I've something I've been wanting to tell Lottie ever since I met her. But his smile was for Mona."

Barry found a beret and huge sweater for Mona and presently they set off. Half a dozen dogs greeted them excitedly as they appeared on the lawn. Mona and Barry stood for a moment, the crisp air filling their lungs.

"Great stuff!" cried Barry, breathing deeply.

"And yet," Mona pointed out, "you're leaving it."

They set out briskly on the road leading toward the stables.

"You must rough it at the mines," Mona said.

Barry nodded. "Luxury. And idleness and, more or less, dissension! Maybe I've told you my uncle and I don't get on very well. We can't seem to mend the situation. I've very nearly stopped trying. Twilands is, in a way, half mine, you see. It's my home. I couldn't pass up Twilands."

He paused uncertainly. "Of course I have my own income but it's tied up so my uncle can really supervise the spending of every dime. At the mines I am someone. The whole place belongs to us. We have a huge house—you should see those houses in the tropics! High, wide and handsome. Latticed to let the air in and not a pane of glass in the whole building. We dine on the verandah, watching the fireflies

in the dark. We have books—not too many, because the insects destroy the bindings. They feast on book-binders' glue, it seems. We have huge beds like King What's-his-name died in, with netting draped over the sides. I shouldn't say too rough it. There's a golf club near enough for convenience. And we have our island. We go there occasionally for holidays."

They walked a few moments and then Barry continued, "You can buy a linen suit down there for 80 cents."

"Help!" Mona exclaimed, laughing. "I see I was wrong! You don't rough it at all! Remember, I live on wicked, costly Third Avenue!"

The dogs came tumbling out to meet them. The valley, smoke-filled, stretched out invitingly. Lacy trees waved their tender branches. Mona and Barry strolled across the golf course toward a clump of maples.

"I want to show you my little camp," Barry said. "I had it built when I was in college. We dammed the stream and when there was skating I used to have parties there."

A half mile further the camp, a small affair at the water's edge, came into view. There was a wide verandah piled with chairs tipped against the storms. The door was locked and above it, on a high sill, was a white chalk line. Barry raised on tiptoe, drew his hand along the line and found the key. "Careful of the rug there," he called as he swung the door open. Too late! Mona had not seen the carpet rolled at her feet. She tripped and stumbled. Barry caught her.

"Great Scott, you aren't hurt?" He raised her in his arms, a fragile burden, and swung her into the room.

On her feet once more, breathless, Mona stood laughing. Barry regarded her seriously. "That's an old-fashioned custom, isn't it? I've heard it somewhere. Swinging one's bride over the sill!"

Mona felt frozen in her tracks. Strangely, Barry avoided her eyes and went to explore the living room of the camp. He knelt at the fireplace and nodded with approval when he saw that a fire had been laid. Without speaking Mona followed him slowly.

The room was cold and chilly. The rugs had been rolled and were standing about the walls, the chairs dusty and old but comfortable. There were camp beds, denim covered and pillowed. Tables. A wide buffet at one end and beyond a kitchen, well stocked with staples and canned goods.

Water Restrictions.

Telegraph.]

Sir,—The 'old' restriction on the supply of water in this Colony has already had its effect from to-day, and the occurrence, as experience shows, falls in during the same period of the season of the year when water is more abundantly required and indispensably needed. Altho the reservoirs are said to be opened for six hours daily—from 5 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. respectively, there are already complaints that no water comes into the house for the whole of this morning. So we are already in the trouble, and if the weather doesn't change and bring us a down-pour of shower to rain the cats and dogs, we will soon have to see the fun of washing ourselves with our own perspiration. Of course, complaints, excuses, blames, will not do us any good nor bring any relief. But why not make a little revolution and apply the restriction during the winter time instead of during these hot days? We have just to reverse the maxim "Look for our dry days" and not for our rainy days, in our case.

Yours etc.,

C.S.C.

KILLING THE GOOSE

The homely wisdom of a poet
is often nearer the truth than
the theories of philosophers and wiseacres. Aesop, in one of his
fables, tells of a householder
who had a goose that laid a
golden egg every day. Becoming dissatisfied with so slow an
income, however, he killed the
bird, "thinking to seize the whole
treasure at once." Economists
and philosophers to-day, spurred
by economic and social unrest,
are speculating as to the causes
of the slump and trying to find
remedies for the conditions it
has brought about. They are engaged in seeking the goose—
the goose which apparently
provided resources for the dizzy
prosperity of a few years ago.
Two prominent educationists
recently spoke on these problems,
expressing views which are
particularly interesting because
of the different ways in which
they approached the subject.
Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler declared the situation pointed "to
some fundamental failure of
that plan which seeks to adjust
demand with supply through the
ordinary medium of prices." In this view, Dr. Butler was pursuing the argument launched by
the technocrats. The needed adjustment "is itself a technical
problem," he said, "since on the
one hand all the elements of productive efficiency are present
and anxious to co-operate, while
on the other hand the human
need for the products of this cooperative efficiency is imperative and universal." But Dr. El-
mer Brown sounded a deeper and
more significant note than the
"technical problem" theory when
he declared that the "social mas-
tery of those material gains
which the sciences have brought
us" must be found through "a
better development of the social
sciences—economics, sociology,
politics and related subjects."
The necessity, as Dr. Brown sees
it, is to bring the social sciences
"up to such pitch of power that
they may give to the accomplishments of physical science a more
effective direction to desirable
social ends." Dr. Brown's views
find support in a study of the relation of wage policies to the
distribution of purchasing power
made recently, which indicates
that existing economic difficulties might justly be attributed,
at least in part, to the working
of "an uncontrolled profit motive," functioning not only during the "prosperity" years but
even during the first half of 1932. This is the twentieth century version of Aesop's fable of
the goose that laid the golden
eggs. The curve of dividends,
the study showed, rose steadily
from 1926 until, in the first half
of 1930, they reached a peak of

97 per cent. higher than the 1926
level. The total volume of interest and dividend payments in
than in 1929, and in the first half
of 1932 was still 72 per cent.
while, wages bills, which furnish
the bulk of the purchasing power of the lowest income groups,
who provide 67.27 per cent. of
the market for goods and services—dropped constantly from
the middle of 1929 until in the
first half of 1932 they reached
a level 55 per cent. below that
of 1926. No wonder the demand
for the products of industry declined while the purchasing power of more than two-thirds of
the consumers of those products
was being drained away by wage
cuts—although the higher in-
come groups, who make up less
than one third of the market for
consumers' goods but invest
their surplus funds largely in
increasing productive equipment,
were getting interest and divid-
ends only about 25 per cent.
smaller than they had been in
the rosier years of prosperity.
Overcoming in modern industry
the tendency of Aesop's house-
holder to be dissatisfied with
moderate and reasonable returns
may be a problem no less formidable than that promulgated
by the technocrats. But recognition of the appropriateness of applying Aesop's homely illustration to the situation might set
men to work to bring about
prompt and effective measures
for increasing distribution and
consumption—a simpler and
more comprehensible process
than awaiting the outcome of
complicated, involved and
lengthy attempts to create a balance that is "operated in a thermo-dynamically balanced
load."

Statuesque Inaccuracy

People who put up statues
should really be more careful.
In London, a correspondent of
The Times points to the equestrian figure outside the House
of Parliament, which shows
Richard Coeur-de-Lion apparatly wearing his chain-mail next
to his skin. Richard was in
many respects an eccentric
monarch, but the writer of the
letter in question is probably
justified in his obvious feeling
that he was not so eccentric as all that. For, although Richard
is well known to have had the
heart of a lion, no one has hitherto suggested that he had the
hide of an elephant. But these inaccuracies are by no means confined to Britain. Joubertless
there are statues elsewhere
which manifest similar absurdities. They certainly did in India.
For example, the statue of Sir
Thomas Munro on "Th Island," Madras, represents him performing the remarkable feat of
balancing a naked sword on the tip of a dancier pump.
The explanation of course, is
that art seeks after truthfulness;
and truthfulness and accuracy
are not by any means always
the same thing.

Seeing England in Germany

Reports that a film showing England's scenic beauty, ancient
buildings and modern industrial
developments is delighting Ger-
man audiences and surprising
German commentators indicate
that many cultivated Germans
are just discovering England.
Even the Berlin reviews seem
to be among those agreeably surprised. London—will its huge dimensions, its gantic
traffic, its imposing buildings—
appears as a strange world, although it lies only a few hours'
journey distant from us.
The film offers an abundance
of pictures of a country and its inhabitants who are clearly related to us and whom we think
we know.... Happy land! One
may note in other passages from German newspaper a similar
sense of the writers having
happened upon a country hitherto somewhat removed from their experience. This earnestness with which the pictures of England have been welcomed by German audiences and critics is
quite understandable. Despite
the restrictive influence of na-
tionalist doctrines in many lands,
the times are marked by an increasing desire on the part of
people the world over to understand one another, regardless of nationality.

HOLLYWOOD COMES DOWN TO EARTH

By SAMUEL GOLDWYN

Hollywood is finished. Holly-
wood is in better shape than at
any other time in its history.

These two statements seem to
contradict each other. In fact,
they do not. To understand the
position of Hollywood to-day, you
have to realise that there are two Hollywoods. The present so-called
slump in the film world in America
is merely a transition from the
one Hollywood to the other.

Let me explain. The film world
in America was boosted to un-
manageable dimensions on the crest of a boom. During that
boom money ceased to have any
solid value. Speculation ran mad.
Everybody bought everything, regardless of cost. Among other
things, cinemas were built regardless of the capacity of the population to fill their seats, or of
the ability of Hollywood to keep
their screens filled with films of
first-rate quality.

Cinemas in panic demanded
more and more films. They shout-
ed for double-feature programmes,
changed weekly or even bi-weekly.
Hollywood was goaded to produce
talking pictures in such quantity
that quality became a minor consideration.

FINANCIAL DOMINATION.

The making of films, which is
an art and a very difficult art, became an industry. It became big business. Hollywood became dominated by financiers, became mechanised. Its studios became
factories turning out so much film
footage on factory schedules.

The cinemas themselves were
mechanised. By reckless buying
they were collected into huge
chains and were run on the same
lines as cheap multiple stores, but
with less intelligence. Every
local manager in a multiple store
chain is, as I understand it, his
own buyer. He must deal in the
may vary his quantities to suit his
customers.

The local manager of chain of
cinemas has not even this small
liberty. He must offer the goods
supplied to the chain, without any consideration for his customers.
He ceases to become a caterer to
the needs of his public. His cinema has all the individuality of
a slot machine.

There is no magic in the world
whereby drama can be reduced to
a recipe, a formula, or a standardised commodity. If there were, it would be as easy to tin films as to
tin sardines.

QUALITY, NOT QUANTITY.

These superfluous, mechanised
cinemas found their public disappearing and decided that their
goers wanted more for their
money: hence the double-feature
programme, the quick change of
programme, the panic production
of pictures, and the general in-
feriority of the pictures made.
But it was quality and not quantity that the public wanted.

That is one of the two Holly-
woods: the Hollywood that is
finished.

The present slump is not a
cyclone that has torn the film
world up by the roots. It is only
a very healthy wind that has
blown away a lot of dead wood.

In its recent madness, Holly-
wood hired everything and every-
body to deliver pictures on time.

Stars and those who never could
be stars, directors and substitutes
for directors, were given fantastic
contracts, and apologies for
authors were engaged to turn out
churn out stories so that these
might be kept at work and the
schedules might be observed. In this way the road to ruin was
covered in record time.

What is true of Hollywood may
be true of England, if England
does not profit by the fate of Hollywood; and, as a very close
observer of conditions throughout
the film world, I am sorry to say
that England, in my opinion, has
not taken the Hollywood lesson to
heart.

In the light of all these considerations, I say that the calamity
which has overtaken this Hollywood was inevitable. The incompetent had to go. Let them
go. A second Hollywood, a stronger and more secure Holly-
wood, remains and is on the eve
of a golden age. The film world
has not slumped. It has come
down to earth.

Let us look at this other Holly-
wood: the Hollywood which regards the making of films as an
art: the Hollywood which holds to
those ideals without which no
really fine films can ever be made.
I could write of the things that go
to the making of fine films: things
like courage and faith and the
taking of infinite pains, but I
would rather clarify this subject
with more practical argument.

In one of our great American
cinemas—the Roxy, in New York
—the receipts as between one film
and another, shown in precisely the
same conditions, have varied by as
much as $11,000 in one week.
There is nothing to account for
this other than the fact that the public is film-wise. As we say in the film world, the filmgoers of to-
day go shopping for entertain-
ment, and there is no known
method by which the filmgoers of
to-day can be deluded into flocking
to inferior films. They have developed a sixth sense in relation
to the cinema.

WRITER THE CREATOR.

It is my absolute conviction that
the writer is the creator of film
drama, in the first instance, and Hollywood does not have sufficient
writers to create more than 50
outstanding talking pictures a
year. The maximum quality out-
put of Hollywood is 50 talking
pictures a year. The maximum quantity output of London is
year.

I do not say that the film world
should recognise this fact. I go further. I say that those sections of the film world, which do not
recognise this fact will die.

Years ago in Hollywood there
was a cry for "Bigger and Better
Pictures." It became a joke. It
is no joke now. It has taken on a new and serious significance. We
must have pictures of surpassing
quality so that the film world will
live. We shall not have the
quantity of films we have to-day,
and the number of our cinemas
must be reduced by half, or even
more; but when that is done the
films we make will run for far
longer periods and will attract infinitely greater weekly patronage.

That is the Hollywood that will
survive.

"Not a burglar, eh? Well, you can just explain to the

The Very Idea!

CONDIMENTINIA

By Eddie "Hot Dog" Kelly.

WHAT with the summer
upon us, and people
thinking of going for picnics
and what nots, we think
some hints on this all important subject would not be
amiss.

Besides, it's the only thing we
can think of to-day.

The first thing you want on a picnic is salt. Salt is what you
can take this with a grain of.
It is used as a flavouring for
animal, vegetable, mineral, and
catch.

There are three
kinds of salt; one,
obtained at sea, is
called "old salt",
another is the salt
of the earth and
there is also a
"tough old salt",
Epsom, by name.

Pepper is what the modern Hongkong housewife uses to keep
food hot indefinitely.

Combined with salt pepper makes a nice suit of plus fours. It is mined by punching holes in the top
of a tin with a rusty nail.

Pepper is very dangerous if
taken in large quantities, and
produces a condition known as
pep.

Pep is pepper with the last
three letters omitted. If they
are not omitted it is still pepper.
The most famous brand is Pep-
per Up.

Cinnamon is the difference between breakfast and getting out of bed on a cold morning. It comes in all the season's shades and is particularly becoming to brunettes
toast.

It is a fairly recent product.
The old Romans used potassium
cyanide. The young ones didn't care. Cinnamon is found all over
the floor and around the corner of
the mouth.

Sand is the flavouring used mostly by picnicers. It is found in almost all bathing suits and is
discovered by sitting down.

The vendor of this famous
edible used to be called the "sand
man" by the old-fashioned, but in Hongkong he is known as Johnny
Walker or "wasall".

The coarser varieties of sand
are found on our beaches, but a
finer grade, well worth the money,
may be seen at the Peninsula
Hotel Roof Garden any evening
with the Dawn.

When sand is by itself it is
called beach. When it is mixed
with ham and bread it is called sand-wich.

There is no substitute for sand,

THIS NUDIST BUSINESS.

Once again the "open shirt"
calls, and the air resounds to the
nudist's merry whistle and the
clang of hobnail on macadam.
Eheu, fugaces, as our Tutor used
to say. He never would tell us
what it meant (the rascal), but we
think 'twas something to do with
birds. "We like that 'twas." It
strikes an open-air note.

Once again we are beset with
letters asking How and Why
to nude. Once again there are
Colony looking for Mr. Laneport.
Some people have all the luck.

Kit—Let us plead, once again,
for the absolute minimum. A spare suit of clothes, of course, for
the evenings; pajamas and dress-
ing gown—we never carry more.
The day's rations and a bottle or
two of the "wherewithal." A few
friendly books—Shakespeare, Wil-
cox; Bradshaw; the A.B.C. A
musical instrument or so. And,
for hilly country, a small scooter
with auxiliary engine.

When we said "musical instrument" just now we think we
should have specified a saxophone.
"Wind on the health, brother"—

MAD MELODIES.

(Waltz-Blues)

Let you and me go honny-mooning!
It's all dat we unemployed can do,
For listen—I hear dem tenors
crooning:

Ten years more for you,
You get long, croon de tenors,
You got long right now;
Government ain't able to do

PRESIDENT BOAT
MASTER FINED*BREAKS QUARANTINE REGULATIONS*SMALL POX SEQUEL

Captain G. W. Yardley, master of the President Lincoln appeared at the Marine Court before Commander Newill this morning charged with committing breaches of the quarantine regulations.

The charges alleged that being master of a "suspicious vessel," he communicated with the shore without having been granted peritque by written order of the Health Officer, and that he failed to proceed at once to the quarantine anchorage on entering the harbour.

Mr. D. H. Blake (Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist) who appeared for the defendant entered a plea of guilty to a technical breach of the regulations, but maintained that there were extenuating circumstances.

Mr. Blake said there were two cases of small-pox on the vessel between Honolulu and Yokohama. On arriving at Yokohama, the Captain took all precautions, with the necessary steps—the ship was fumigated and vaccinations were carried out to the satisfaction of the Health Authorities there, and the vessel proceeded to Kobe.

CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH.

At Kobe she obtained a clean bill of health. She then went to Shanghai, and left there for Hongkong along with a clean bill of health. The Captain had been trading in these waters for many years, and thinking that he had a clean bill of health, he followed his usual practice and came direct to his berth. He did not think that it was necessary to report the matter to the local authorities as he was in possession of the certificate of health which he obtained in Shanghai.

The second charge, namely that the defendant did not proceed to the quarantine anchorage, followed from the first charge, submitted Mr. Blake. He said that the master of the vessel did not realize that his vessel came within the definition of a suspected vessel, and therefore did not fly his quarantine flag but proceeded straight to the berth at the Kowloon Wharf.

The Captain said that he was sorry to have committed any breach of the regulations, but it was done unknowingly, and without a full knowledge of the regulations regarding patique.

Dr. Tsai, Port Medical Officer, said he was advised that the vessel had had cases of small-pox on board. These had occurred on April 24, and as the vessel's arrival in Hongkong was only eight days from that date, and the regulations provided that the onus of notification rested with the master or agents of any vessel to advise the Port Health Authorities of any cases of infectious diseases which had occurred within the last 16 days, the vessel was still deemed a "suspicious vessel" until that time had elapsed.

Defendant was fined $100.

BURGLAR JAILED*ROBBERY IN THOMPSON ROAD

Wong Sing, a well-known thief, appeared before Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning, charged with having broken into and entered No. 109, Thompson Road.

Inspector Nolloth said complainant and his wife went out of the house on Sunday morning. When they returned they found the lock of the door had been unscrewed, and property stolen. On information received, the police proceeded to 11, Yee Chow Street, where the defendant was arrested.

Mr. Schofield remarked that all the defendant's previous thefts had been in Kowloon and the New Territories.

Sub-inspector Nolloth informed the Court that defendant lived in Shamshuipo.

Mr. Schofield passed sentence of six months' hard labour.

MEXICAN DESTITUTE*ARRESTED AT STAR FERRY

Alfredo Fernandez, a Mexican, appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of vagrancy. Detective-Sergeant Mottram said defendant had been in the House of Detention before.

The magistrate adjourned the case for the attendance of a Spanish interpreter.

Fernandez, it was alleged, accosted an American sailor and asked for assistance.

UNDATED POLICE WARRANT*CAUSES CASE
TO BE ADJOURNED

The omission of the date on a warrant of arrest caused Mr. Butters at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning to remand a case for 24 hours when Cheung Wui was charged with deserting the Police Force on December 28, 1931, after binding himself to serve for five years as from March, 1931.

Mr. Bidmeade, A.S.P., appeared for the prosecution.

Pleading guilty, defendant explained that just prior to his desertion, he had been frequently put on the reports, and he was once told by Mr. Scott, A.S.P., that if he committed certain offences again he would be charged. This warning, he said, frightened him, and caused him to run away.

Mr. Butters.—When was the warrant taken out?

Mr. Bidmeade.—On December 28, 1931, I think.

Later Mr. Bidmeade said he was not sure when the warrant was taken out, but December 28, 1931, was the day on which defendant disappeared.

After examining the warrant, the magistrate observed that the date of the warrant was omitted.

Mr. Bidmeade.—I understand the Magistrate who signs the warrant usually fills in the date.

IMPORTANT POINT.

Mr. Butters.—Well, the Magistrate in this case did not fill it in. His Worship explained that that was a very important point, as a warrant, according to the Ordinance, must be taken out not later than six months after desertion.

Inspector Lane.—If required, I could give evidence of the date the warrant was issued. I was the man who took out the warrant and I remember it was a week after the man deserted.

Mr. Butters.—I think you'd better consult the law officers of the Crown on this point. On the face of it, I think the warrant is bad. I will remand the case for 24 hours.

WELLINGTON STREET FIGHT*INDIAN WATCHMAN SENT TO HOSPITAL

Badawa Singh, employed as private watchman by the King's Theatre, was sent to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday, suffering from serious head injuries caused by being beaten with a stick.

His alleged assailants, Kapoor Singh, of Lockhart Road, and Kartar Singh, of Charter Road, both private watchmen also, were brought before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

Inspector Brennan.—There is no possible chance of the complainant coming out of hospital to-day.

Kapoor Singh pleaded guilty, but intimated he wished to take out a summons against the complainant.

His Worship remanded the case to Friday, defendants being on bail of $100 each.

YO-YO CRAZE*UNLICENSED HAWKER
CAUTIONED

A charge of hawking yo-yos without a licence was preferred against a Chinese youth before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

His Worship.—What is the Chinese name for yo-yo?

Interpreter.—Defendant calls them wooden boxes. I have never played with it, myself.

The defendant was allowed to go with a caution.

DAY BY DAY NEWS IN BRIEF.

THE COVETOUS MAN HEAPS UP RICHES, NOT TO ENJOY THEM, BUT TO HAVE THEM.—Tillotson.

For stealing a wrist watch in Queen's Road Central yesterday, an unemployed Chinese was given four months by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning.

A returned banished, Chan Kin, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy this morning. The man was arrested in Shauiwan. He stated that he was employed on board a ship which was undergoing repairs in dock.

A fine of $150, or three months, was imposed on a Chinese by Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, on a charge of keeping a "fly" brothel in Tung Street. Sub-inspector A. V. Baker said defendant tried to close the inner door on him.

BACK SEAT JOY RIDING*NOT AN OFFENCE IN LAW

Sitting in the back seat of a "joy-riding" car does not constitute aiding and abetting.

Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning gave this ruling when he discharged three Chinese, an apprentice, a boiler repairer and an electrician who were charged with aiding and abetting an unemployed compatriot who was fined $176 or eight weeks, for driving a car belonging to Mr. A. R. Cox, without a licence and without permission.

Mr. Wynne-Jones said.—As far as I can see mere permissive acquiescence is not aiding and abetting except in such cases where there is definite duty laid on the public to assist in preventing a further offence. Deliberate abetting in that case would be aiding and abetting.

This offence is a misdemeanour, and as far as I know, there is no legal duty laid on the public to prevent a misdemeanour being committed. So that the mere permissive presence in the car is not aiding and abetting. These men were not assisting in driving the car, tooting the horn or using the brakes. I have examined the legal point raised in this charge and I have decided to discharge the defendants.

LARGE STOCK OF DYNAMITE*DANGEROUS GOODS
AT SHAIKIWAN

"He had in his possession 250 sticks of dynamite, sufficient to blow up the Central Police Station," remarked Inspector Rogers in charging a clerk in the Lee Cheong machinery shed at Fortress Hill, North Point, at the Central Magistracy this morning, with possession of dangerous goods.

The defendant had 65 lbs. of chlorate of potash, 176 lbs. of sulphur, 250 sticks of mixed sulphur and chlorate of potash, 23 sticks of dynamite and 62 detonators.

Sub-inspector Rogers said that the defendant had a permit, but the stuff he had was greatly in excess. He seized 250 sticks of dynamite, sufficient to blow up the Central Police Station. The defendant was only entitled to possession of a quarter lb. of potash, but he had 65 lbs. Apparently they manufactured their own dynamite at the shed. Witness had previously warned defendant.

Mr. Schofield imposed a fine of $200 on the defendant, and ordered the confiscation of the articles.

HARBOUR OFFICE*INSPECTOR SHOWN THE WRONG DOOR

A shroff was among five gamblers arrested by Detective-Inspector Fender during a raid on the Sammen's quarters at the Harbour Office, on the complaint of the Harbour Master. One man appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones in the Central Police Court this morning, and was fined $3, the absentees' bails of $5 each being returned.

"It was a large school, but I was shown the wrong door. The gamblers were right up against this door, and when I tried to get in, most of them escaped by the window," said Inspector Fender.

Banished for ten years in 1932 after serving five years in prison for armed robbery, Chan Tak, 24 years of age, was arrested in Shanghai Street on Sunday afternoon. He was charged this morning and sentenced to a year's hard labour.

HOGGING CENTRE OF ROAD*CHINESE DRIVER FINED

Chief Inspector R. Marks gave evidence before Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning against Mr. Yu Kai, whom he summoned for failing to pull in to the left to allow him to pass in Queen's Road East, and failing to produce his licence. Defendant said the Police officer gave no indication of wanting to pass.

The Magistrate did not consider the offence very serious, but said it was clear that defendant was not keeping a proper lookout while driving. Fines totalling $16 were imposed.

Chief Inspector Marks mentioned that defendant had not produced his licence yet. He followed an Austin, from Arsenal Street, along Queen's Road East, to the City Hall. The whole way defendant had one wheel in the centre of the tramtrack. Defendant had two friends with him and they were laughing and talking. Witness sounded his horn six or seven times but the defendant took not the slightest heed.

CLAIM STRUCK OUT.*PLAINTIFFS FAIL TO APPEAR IN SUPREME COURT

A claim for $1,000 damages for alleged wrongful detention was struck out at the Supreme Court yesterday afternoon when the plaintiffs failed to appear.

The parties were Lam Kwan and Lo Loi, both of 89, Tong Mi Road, ground floor, and the defendants were Hongkong Used Cars, Ltd., of 360, Portland Street, Kowloon.

The statement of claim was to the effect that plaintiffs were in the employ of the defendant company on January 13 and on that day Mr. F. V. Whitt, managing director of Hongkong Used Cars, Ltd., procured the arrest of plaintiffs on a charge of having stolen five gallons of petrol. Plaintiffs were detained from January 13 to January 16 when, on the application of their solicitor, they were released on bail, pending the hearing and determination of the charge. Before the magistrate on January 23, defendants had tendered on evidence against plaintiffs, and the magistrate dismissed the charge.

London, May 1.
Owing to a bad chill, Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, was unable to attend the Foreign Office to-day.

Consequently, Mr. Walter Runciman, President of the Board of Trade, alone signed the trade agreement between Britain and the Argentine, on behalf of Britain.—Reuter.

FAMOUS AIRMAN HERE*MAJOR DOOLITTLE TO GIVE DEMONSTRATION FLIGHTS

Major J. H. Doolittle the famous U. S. Army speed pilot arrived in Hongkong yesterday by the President Lincoln, and will leave again to-night for Canton where he will put the first of the batch of Curtiss Hawk pursuit planes which have been bought by the Canton Government through her tests. He will also give a demonstration of this plane's capabilities to Canton Government officials.

DOLONOR'S FALL*INVADERS WITHDRAW

Peking, May 1.
Chinese official sources state that after the Japanese and Manchukuo occupation of Dolonor, the invading forces withdrew to Jehol territory. A small Chinese garrison is now resuming control of the city.—Reuter.

Y.M.C.A. TAKE REVENGE
BEAT COMBINED NAVY IN KEEN WATER POLO MATCH

CIVILIAN'S BIG IMPROVEMENT

The Y.M.C.A. polo team were worthy of their revenge which they took at the expense of the Combined Navy side yesterday, winning by three goals to one after a game of sustained interest and excitement.

The Navy again turned out their strongest team, but the Young Men were forced to make last minute alterations, neither Jenner nor Henry being able to take the water.
E. W. Ralston and Stoker were introduced and played prominent parts in the success of the civilians.

With the Y. M. defending the deep end in the first half, the Navy enjoyed the greater share of the exchanges, but thanks to some brilliant goal-keeping by H. Angus, and the good gooping work of Kerr
and Stoker, the civilians' score was kept down to a single goal at the interval.

It proved insufficient, the Y. M.
taking complete control of the game after the change over, and through Campbell and Schreuder
(2) won a great game.

SOUND DEFFENCE.

Sutton was outstanding for the Navy, whereas all the "Y" team played well. Among who showed up prominently were Angus in goal, Kerr and Stoker, Ralston and Schreuder. Kerr and Stoker displayed pleasing understanding in defence but left the impression they would be better to pass forward more frequently. Ralston was a tower of strength both in defence
and attack, and that he is fast regaining his old form is very evident.

Campbell and Schreuder were hard working forwards, and more than held their own against a powerful Navy defence.

The teams were: Y.M.C.A.—H.
Angus; W. Kerr and W. Stoker;
E. Ralston; W. Campbell, A. Donn
and W. Schreuder.

Combined Navy.—C. Mitchell; C.
Older and G. Groves; W. Hutton;
C. Lee, J. Laker, and J. McCrea.

This made the fifth meeting of the teams, with the Y.M.C.A. holding the balance of victories by three to two, one of the games
being played at Taipei.

Arrangement are in hand for a friendly game at the Y.M.C.A. bath against South China, and it is hoped to fix up a good match for the "Y"
second string.

B. I. Bickford Wins Title in
C.B.A. Tournament.

DRAW FOR THE DOUBLES.

The singles championship of the Central British Association has been won by B. I. Bickford, who beat R.
Blyth in the final by 4-1, 6-2, 6-4.

The draw for the doubles championship of the Association has resulted
as follows:
R. A. Carroll and M. Weill v. R.
Pearl and R. Blyth; F. Angus and D.
Fogg v. S. MacNider and E. Owen
v. D. Buchanan and T. S. D. Whitley;
C. Fowler and A. Smith v. G.
Gurovitch and F. Anslow; N. Whitley
and J. J. King v. B. I. Bickford and D. Smith v. J. J. Ferguson and
R. Wood v. E.

The competition is for the J. J.
Hirst Memorial Cup.

Yesterday.

The annual Garrison league was commenced yesterday, the R. A. O. C.

In one set the scores went to 18-11
before a decision was reached.

All-In Wrestling
CondemnedCORONER'S
STRONG COMMENTS

All-in wrestling is one of the latest society crazes. It is a recent importation from America. Exhibitions of this so-called sport have attracted large British crowds both in London and the Provinces.

Now it has come under the ban of a British jury. At an inquest at Sheffield on "Strangler Johnson," who died after being beaten in an all-in wrestling contest, the jury declared that the business was not a clean English sport and that it ought to be prohibited.

The coroner thought that all-in wrestling was an unlawful sport and that when a combatant died as a result of such a contest his opponent was liable to a charge of manslaughter.

POLICE OPINION.

A Police-Inspector said that "all-in" wrestling contests were of such a nature that no genuine sportsmen would tolerate them or go to see them.

The men behaved more like animals than human beings. He added that in the case of contestants of experience it was a pure hoax on the public, as the result was known before
the men went into the ring.

A police officer who saw the contest
said that Johnson bit his opponent's
hair, and pulled it out with his teeth.
He also spat in his eyes while he was on the floor and got hold of both his ears and twisted them.

"Earl Romskey," the opponent in question, said he had had about twelve bouts with Johnson, and was on perfectly friendly terms with him.

BESTIAL ENTERTAINMENT.

At a recent all-in wrestling fixture
in London, well-known Society women crowded the ring-side seats. False young men wearing earrings were there accompanied by famous actresses. A young Peersess was there.

They yelled and clapped at the most revolting and bestial entertainment that could have ever happened. Nose twisting and kicks in the belly particularly appealed to the sadistic audience.

All-in wrestling means that the contestants can do almost anything except hit each other in the face with clenched fists or gouge each other's eyes out. The fighters go on until they drop and are counted out.

Gorilla-like men, nearly naked and
of superb physique, bit, scratched, hit,
kicked and gouged while a sensation-mad audience urged them on.

STOP AT NOTHING.

Blood delighted the thronged Stadium. People yelled with delight
when a man bit deep into his opponent's ear. "Break his legs!" they shouted. "Snap his fingers off!" they screamed. When the wrestlers came to a deadlock the crowd shouted out with impatient irony—"Kiss him, darling!"

They stopped at nothing. Twice the referee ended fights just in time to save arms from being broken.
"Leave them alone!" roared the crowd.
There were four bouts. In each one of them one or other of the fighters was thrown bodily out of the ring into the audience.

On one occasion both men were flung over the ropes. One man fell into the lap of a woman—a woman
well known in Mayfair circles. Her hat was knocked off and her belongings scattered. She effected a remarkable recovery, gulped herself
together and smilingly lit a cigarette.

SUMMER
HOCKEY
TOURNEYCOMPETITION FOR CIVILIAN TEAMSWARNING TO THE ORGANISERS

By "Bully-Off"

Several civilian teams are said to be taking part in a summer hockey competition to be held this year, among them being the Radio Sports Club, Kowloon Indian Tennis Club,
the United Hockey Club, Incognito, University, and the Police.

Strict secrecy so far as information to the Press is concerned
is being maintained by the sponsors of the tournament, but I learn that a cup is probably being offered by Mr. F. C. Mow Fung of the Outdoor Sports Company.

SAINTS LIKELY ABSENTEES.
It appears that teams will meet
each other twice and all games
will be played on the Radio Sports Club ground at Sookumpoo.

All civilian teams have been invited to participate in the competition, but I was reliably informed this morning that it is unlikely that St. Andrew's will join.

Summer hockey was carried on in the Colony up to two years ago.
When the game was introduced the Club fielded a team called the Wanderers, under the captaincy of Mr. E. J. R. Mitchell, and matches were played with the Jats, H.K.S.R.A. and Naval sides.
When Mr. Mitchell resigned Mr.
A. A. Dand took over the leadership of the Club team and when the summer game fell out of favour two years ago Mr. L. A. R.
Duncan was captain.

A WARNING.

In view of the possibility of the teams competing for a cup,
it would not, perhaps, be out of place to mention that if the competitors commit this breach of the English Hockey Association rules, they will not be eligible to play with local teams affiliated to the Home Association.

It was because of this very rule,
and the fact that the majority of competitors were naval teams owing allegiance to the English Hockey Association rules, which caused the Mamak trophy to be withdrawn this last winter.

The summer league is an excellent idea and there is no reason why enthusiastic clubs should not enjoy the game throughout the year, but the organisers would be well advised to look before they leap in the matter of offering a prize.

It would be folly to ruin civilian clubs' chances of playing with the navy sides merely for the sake of a trophy for a close season competition.

SOLVING FOOTBALL'S
HIGH FINANCEScrap Half of the Clubs
in Third Division

Scrap half the clubs in the Northern and Southern Sections of the Third Division, and form a new and stronger competition with the remaining 22 teams! That is the proposition put forward to a London
evening newspaper recently by Mr.
Jack Treadwell, manager of Crystal Palace, as a solution to the acute financial problem which is threatening League football.

"It is common knowledge that a large proportion of Third Division clubs are heavily in debt," said Mr.
Treadwell, "and how some of them
are to carry on I really do not know.
The cause of the trouble, in my opinion, is that these clubs cannot provide the class of football that their supporters expect—and the reason for this is that they cannot afford to buy the right players."

NOT ENOUGH PLAYERS.
At present there are not enough players to go round—not enough to supply the needs of the 88 clubs
which now constitute the league.

"The trouble, from the viewpoint of Third Division Clubs, is that they now have to compete with wealthy First Division clubs for the services of junior players. Inflated transfer fees have forced the weaker organizations to do their own scouting in the preserves that used to be searched
almost exclusively by the smaller League clubs."

Formerly, junior players used to be found by Third Division clubs,
and later transferred to the bigger clubs at useful fees. Now we are being left out in the cold.
"My theory is that the only way to solve the problem would be to lessen the number of League clubs,
and later transferred to the bigger

American Ryder Cup Team
Is Very StrongWill Be Best That Ever Invaded England
in Quest of Golf Laurels

An exceptionally early and warm Spring suddenly came upon the country has set the golfers all agog.
What about the coming American invasion? That is a topic being discussed on all hands.

It is generally accepted that the American team to compete for the Ryder Cup and to play in the open championships at St. Andrews will be the strongest that has ever left the shores of the United States.

LONG-HITTERS.

The American Selection Committee have chosen the men who happen to be in form at the moment; also they have pinned their faith to the skill of the long-hitters—men like Dutra,
Wood and Shute.

Walter Hagen may find himself the shortest driver. He is a wily strategist. As captain, he will doubtless prove to be a tower of strength to his side.

Olin Dutra has been called the golfer without a weakness. He is a very fine putter. Weighs 17 stone.
But then, these big men often do have a beautiful touch on the green. He has been credited with some wonderful scoring feats; also he won the American Professional Golfers' Association Championship which is decided by match play.

Craig Wood is another wonderful golfer. He won a California championship with a score of 10 under par for 72 holes! Denmore Shute was runner-up to Olin Dutra in the American Professional Championship. His father came from Westward Hol and went to America 25 years ago. It is not an uncommon name in that part of England.

Shute is one of the best American youngsters.

Paul Runya must be a very fine player if only from the fact that he defeated Sarazen in the same championship which Olin Dutra won. The tenth man will doubtless be a player
with equally impressive credentials,
so that the English golfers will have a difficult task, not only to beat them in the actual match for the cup, but also to prevent one of them from hurling the list in the Open at St.
Andrews in July.

WALTER HAGEN.

Everyone will be delighted to see
Walter Hagen occupying his position of Captain once more. It will be interesting to see if he has retained his form. There were rumours that he had lost his putting—surely the greatest loss that a golfer can sustain
—but he has evidently rediscovered
the secret.

Hagen is the greatest personality
that the game has yet produced, and he invariably gives of his best in this country—especially on British sea-links when the wind blows oh-sodiabolically. Diegel is an extremely interesting personality, both as regards style and temperament. He struck out an entirely new line of putting, which,

although it cannot be called graceful, was exceedingly effective.

Henry Cotton will not be eligible to play for Great Britain, owing to his appointment in Belgium. On the other hand, Percy Alliss, is back from Germany, and several of the younger players showed excellent form towards the close of last season.

A. Perry, of Leatherhead, has already given instance that he has last September.

CAUSES ATTRIBUTED FOR THE ACCIDENT.

The hearing of evidence in connection with the Coroner's inquiry being held by Mr. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy, into the circumstances surrounding the death of a young Chinese woman school teacher, Yeung Wai-lee, who was killed in a motor accident in Victoria Road on March 11, is nearing a close, and a verdict will most probably be delivered on Thursday afternoon.

The driver of the car, No. 3710, Kwok Hung-ki, is alleged to have deliberately driven the car over the embankment, and an allegation to this effect was made by the dead girl.

Continuing his evidence yesterday, Kwok described the accident. After leaving Aberdeen about 12.20 p.m., on March 11 he said he took the lower road at the request of Young Wai-lee. Near the scene of the accident he saw a man cross the road about two or three feet in front of the car round a bend. He applied the footbrake, but the car continued on its course. He then averted to the left to avoid the man and before he realized what had happened the car went over the bank.

When he recovered he found himself in hospital. He was doing about 17 to 20 miles per hour prior to the accident, according to the speedometer. The road near the scene of the accident seemed to have been recently tarred with a coating of gravel on it. His speed was not more than 20 miles an hour, for it would have been dangerous to have gone at a higher speed as the road was full of bends.

In reply to Mr. Hin-shing Lo, who is appearing for him, witness said that he had been a salesman at Goeke and Company for the past six months, and during that period had occasionally driven a similar car in size and make to that involved in the accident. This particular car was sold to Mr. Li Yee about December last, and witness had learnt that it had been undergoing repairs to its engine and brakes at Ah Yau and Co.

Causes of Accident.

In reply to Mr. Wadson, who is holding a brief for the owner, Mr. Li Yee, witness stated that he attributed the accident to the man crossing the road and the defective brakes. When he found that the brakes would not act properly, he turned the car back to the road, but it was too late. During this trip he had occasion to use the brakes at a previous bend, but on that occasion they had been effective because he had slowed down.

Questioned by the Coroner, witness said that neither the deceased girl nor her sister, Yeung Wai-yuk, had remarked about the speed of the car after leaving Aberdeen. He could not have stopped the car with the foot brake alone. He did not use the hand brake because the two girls were seated with him in front.

Mr. Hugo Ammann, partner in the firm of Messrs. Goeke & Co., next testified to the fact that when a car was bought from their firm the owner could have it repaired free of charge for six months at their service stations in Kowloon and Hongkong. Ah Yau & Co. were their agents in Hongkong for repairing cars.

Yee Wai-man, the manager of Ah Yau & Co., next gave evidence. He was questioned on the repairs done to car No. 3710 prior to the accident. He said that he remembered repairs being effected to the cushions, horn, rear lights, and once the lubricating oil being replaced with new oil, but never were repairs done to the engine or the brakes.

The inquiry was then adjourned until Thursday afternoon.

THE FAMOUS "PRESSURELESS TOUCH" HAS MADE IT THE FAVORITE OF MILLIONS

It's ABSOLUTELY true that many people would never think of owning any pen but a Parker Duofold. It writes so easily, holds so much ink, and looks so well in their pockets and on their desks that they just won't change!

Try a Parker yourself, if you've never used one. Hold the pen lightly between your thumb and forefinger. Let the point barely touch the paper. You're writing words without pressure, without strain or effort! That's Parker's famous "pressureless touch," the exclusive feature that makes writing easier than ever before!

Ask the agent to explain the Parker's many other superiorities: Leak-proof, non-breakable barrel. Concealed button filler. Gold point, tested eleven times. And the handsome pen you can buy, with a choice of many exquisite colors! For sale at all good stores.

Parker QUINK—A quick-drying ink that makes all pens write better. Prevents clogging. Brilliant and vivid colors which do not fade. Also washable blue for school and home.

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES.

Tallulah Bankhead and Robert Montgomery are Hollywood's newest combination of screen lovers. They appear together for the first time in "Faithless," which is showing at the Queen's Theatre.

Miss Bankhead was borrowed from Paramount to play the feminine lead in this drama of the penniless rich, based on a story by Mildred Cram. It is her first engagement away from the studio which brought her from the London stage.

To add lustre to the occasion, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer selected Robert Montgomery for the jaunty hero of the story. Montgomery recently appeared opposite Marion Davies in "Blondie of the Follies." He has also played leading man to Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo and Joan Crawford, and stood forth in his studio's opinion as the personality best suited as a "play-mate" for the exotic Miss Bankhead.

This combination brings together two stars who suggest in the public mind the sense of smartness which the story of "Faithless" requires. It is a romantic tale of two young members of the "idle rich" who become step-children of the depression, and find themselves suddenly struggling in the whirlpool of present-day economic adversity.

Lewis Milestone, director of "The Front Page," the newspaper sensation now at the King's Theatre, has a flair for picking out interesting characters "bits" for himself in his own pictures.

In "The Front Page," he can be identified in the role of a newspaper truck-driver, a colourful "bunkey" from the circulation department who makes the rounds of apartment houses and other questionable places in search of "Hildy Johnson," missing star-reporter, played by Pat O'Brien.

The Queen's Soloist

Russell Thorndike, who plays the minister Doctor Munro in "Puppets of Fate," sang as a boy in the choir of the Chapel Royal, Windsor, and was boy soloist to the late Queen Victoria. He last sang at Windsor on the occasion of the Queen's funeral.

"She was a most delightful lady," says Mr. Thorndike, "and I remember on one occasion when I had sung the solo, she called me to her and asked me who out of all the celebrities present I would most like to meet. I replied 'Sir Henry Irving,' whom I had noticed among the congregation and who was then my hero. The Queen then introduced me to him, and my cup of happiness was full."

Mr. Thorndike can be seen in "Puppets of Fate" at the Queen's Theatre on Thursday.

Remarkable strides forward were made by British pictures during 1931. Just at the end of the year "Mischief," a British and Dominion production, set the seal upon all the farcical-comedies of the year. The story is one of the familiar Ben Travers brand, who will be principally remembered for "Rookery Nook" and "Plunder." The new picture, which will be shown at the King's Theatre again on Wednesday, is a typical Ralph Lynn subject and affords that great comedian abundant opportunity to display his genius.

Keen judges who have seen "Mischief," regard it as being the funniest

ply. "Do you think it would be fun to have supper down here?" he asked. "I'll get Jimmy to hunt up some steaks and we can bring Jenn to fix something to go with it. I'll cook the steaks on the grill myself. That's something I miss at the mine!"

"I'd love it!" Mona told him, tremulously. He had said the word "bride" and then, without warning, he had apparently forgotten her. Her had deliberately dropped the subject.

Barry closed the kitchen door, kicked at the wood basket, tested the lights, and said finally. "Well, shall we go back? We seem to be more or less deserting our guests, don't we?"

British comedy yet made. It is a riot of laughter from the opening to the final fade-out. This laughter, too, is of a most comprehensive type in that it covers everything from the inward grin to the hearty guffaw. Ralph Lynn gives a brilliant comedy performance, and is admirably supported by Winifred Sherer, Jeanne Stuart and James Carew.

Tala Birell, the screen's newest lunatic, made her screen debut in a motion picture made by a German company and recorded in the German language, but filmed "on location" in England. Miss Birell is now appearing on the screen at the Central Theatre in the principal role of "Nagana," Universal's thrilling wild-animal picture told against the background of African jungles and detailing the dramatic fight of science against the dreaded jungle diseases.

Both Looking Better Every Day

New health is reflected in happy smiles, in brighter eyes, in better colour. . . . In there anything so wonderfully satisfying as these things?

When health has been below par the surest way to recovery is to improve the quality and increase the quantity of the blood. The remedy which, for the past fifty years, has been noted as particularly efficacious in this direction is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

In a recently series of tests conducted by a medical practitioner on a group of twelve persons, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills proved beyond all doubt that they increase the haemoglobin content of the blood and also the blood count. This definitely confirms the claims of this renowned blood and nerve tonic.

Acting in this way Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can be relied upon to produce the happiest results, in anaemia (blood impoverishment) and ailments resulting therefrom, such as nerve troubles, insomnia, chronic headaches, digestive troubles, physical weakness, depression, premature age, back pains, rheumatism, sciatica, women's ailments. They are also of great help after debilitating fevers or other weakening ailments.

You can rely on Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, backed by the reports of the medical profession.

CONTRACT BRIDGE.

By W. E. McKenney

Do you make the mistake of doubling a slam contract just because you feel assured of setting the contract one trick? If so, you are making a grave mistake. Safely to double a slam contract you must be positive of having at least two different ways of setting the contract.

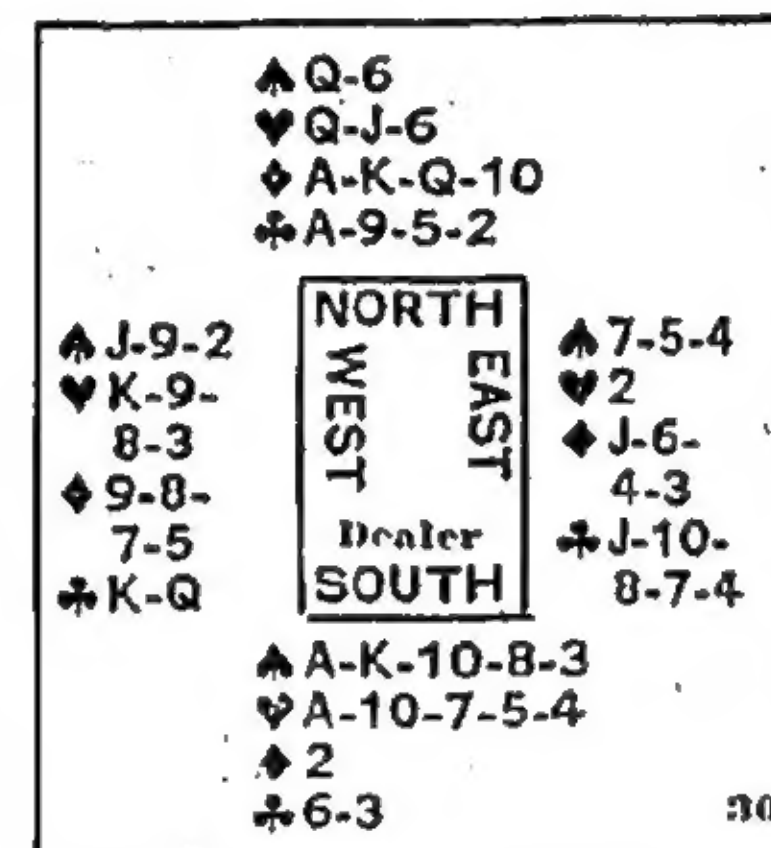

Naturally, when your opponents arrive at a slam contract there are but few missing high cards, and so, when you have only one chance of setting the contract, your double may act as a boom-crang and instead of accomplishing its purpose, it may be the very means of helping the declarer to locate these missing high cards and may aid him in making his contract.

While in Rochester, N. Y., recently, arranging for the Rochester district tournament of the American Bridge League, Mr. Earl S. Cobey of that city referred the following hand to me.

The Bidding

Under the one over one system, the normal bidding would be South one spade, West pass. North, with his great strength, definitely knows that a game is certain and a slam probable.

The question is whether to force in diamonds or in no trump, personally I prefer the bid of two

no trump rather than one of three diamonds. The diamonds may be bid later on.

After the two no trump bid, South would bid three hearts. North would bid four diamonds, which bid definitely marks him with a strong four-card suit.

While South has two five-card major suits, he has no more strength than originally advertised in his initial bid, so his proper response would be four hearts. This tells North that the South hand contains two five-card suits.

South's three high-card tricks necessary for an original bid are practically marked. North should not bid five hearts, inviting a slam, but should bid the slam himself with a bid of six hearts. East and South would pass.

West is confronted with a problem—it looks as though he has a club trick, and certainly a heart trick. Most players with West's hand would double. Now let us see how the double would work to the advantage of the declarer.

West would open his king of clubs, hoping to establish a club trick immediately so that he could cash it when he got in with the king of hearts. This trick would be won by the declarer with the ace in dummy.

He would lead the ace and king of diamonds from dummy, on which he would discard his losing club. The queen of spades and then a small spade would be led from dummy, declarer win-

BOXER INDEMNITY

QUESTIONS ON BRITAIN'S REMITTANCE

London, May 1. Information regarding Britain's share of the Boxer Indemnity was given in the House of Commons today following questions asked by Mr. Wardlaw Milne and answered by Mr. Stanley Baldwin, who took up the Foreign Office questions in the absence of Sir John Simon, Foreign Secretary, who is indisposed.

Mr. Wardlaw Milne asked whether any memorial, comparable with that secured by the United States in the shape of the Peking University, had been arranged to mark the sacrifice of the British taxpayer in remitting his share of the Boxer Indemnity, to amount to approximately five times that of the United States.

Been Misinformed.

Mr. Baldwin said that Mr. Wardlaw Milne had been misinformed in his comparison of the sums involved. The United States had remitted approximately 35 million pounds in gold dollars out of a total of 53 million pounds—approximately 65% per cent, while the respective figures in the case of Britain were 11 millions, 16.5 millions and 68 per cent. The remitted British funds had been invested in rehabilitating and building railways and other productive enterprises in China, thus creating an endowment to be subsequently devoted to educational purposes, mentioned by Mr. Buxton of the Advisory Committee.

Under the agreement with the Chinese Government and the act of 1931, the allocation of funds was within the discretion of the Board of Trustees. Although this might not result in a memorial he mentioned that the British Government considered it the most practicable arrangement in the interests of both countries.

Mr. Somerville asked if there was a large grant to the Hongkong University from this fund. Mr. Baldwin requested notice.—Reuter.

The opening leader has shown up with the king-queen of clubs, and his double definitely marks him with the king of hearts. The drop of the nine of spades gives the declarer the encouragement that the spade suit may break, so instead of ruffing a spade, he leads a small heart.

West plays low, the trick is won with dummy's queen. A small club is trumped by the declarer, and a small heart led, which West wins with the king.

Now if West returns the nine of hearts, declarer will overtake dummy's queen with the ace, lead the ten of hearts, and then win the last three tricks with his three good spades.

However, West can make the play more interesting by leading the nine of diamonds, which declarer will win with dummy's queen, discarding a spade.

The declarer had played the hand marking-West with the jack of spades, therefore West must have one diamond left. The ten of diamonds is led from dummy and trumped by the declarer with the ten of hearts. The ace of spades is led and a club discarded from dummy.

When the ten of spades is led, West is forced to trump with the eight of hearts, dummy overtrumps the last trick with the ace of hearts.

STRIKE CALLED AT NANNING

MAGISTRATE ACCUSED

(Our Own Correspondent).

Wuchow, May 1. An entirely new story concerning the death of a child by a motor-bus near Nanning and of the alleged mobbing and killing of the driver by the natives, has now come to light.

According to the latest news from Nanning, Dr. Tang Meo-u the Magistrate at Ping Tang, where the accident occurred, executed the driver of the bus which knocked down the child within an hour or two of his being taken to the city.

The report adds that the driver and his assistant were taken to the scene of execution and both made to kneel down, but only the driver paid the extreme penalty, his companion merely acting as "escort," but at the same time getting a severe fright.

MAGISTRATE'S DEATH DEMANDED

The affair has created tremendous excitement, and the Labour Guild at Nanning has declared a strike beginning to-day.

Among its demands is the execution of Dr. Tang. It is claimed that Dr. Tang exceeded his authority and that he should have turned the case over to the

PITTSBURGH PILE UP THE RUNS

Philadelphia Routed in Amazing Game

Washington, May 1. Pittsburgh routed Philadelphia in the National League to-day when, after as well as walloping the pitchers for ten runs, they blanked out the Phillies, Swift putting in some deadly pitching. In the only American League game Cleveland outplayed Chicago.

law courts thus giving the driver an opportunity to defend himself. Dr. Tang, who is the leader of the Mass-Education Movement, is a graduate of Columbia University and a prominent leader among present-day educationalists. He recently came to South China from the north to establish a model district at Ping Tang.

Coincident with the opening day of the strike, the Provincial Congress, presided over by Marshal Li Chung-yan and Governor Wang Yuk-tso started its sitting.

PROMOTION FOR HULL

WIN FOOTBALL HONOURS

RETURNING TO SECOND DIV.

London, May 1. After a neck and neck race right through the season, the championship of the northern section of the Third Division, and with it promotion, has been settled between Hull and Wrexham in their penultimate matches.

Hull, by defeating York yesterday by the odd goal in three have won the laurels, Wrexham, their nearest rivals falling at Stockport.

Hull therefore return to the Second Division from which they were relegated in the 1929-30 season, being sent down in company with Notts County.

They will be accompanied by Brentford who have finished as leaders of the southern section of the Third Division.
